Learning Retail Realities

Roadside Stand Teaches Students, Meets Customer Needs

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — "When the students get out of here, they can say, 'I not only learned this in a book, I learned it by doing,'" said Michael Moran, farm market manager here at Delaware Valley College.

A farm market in operation since 1932 on the campus has provided not only an educational opportunity but also an outlet for the college's products.

Flowers, vegetables, fruits, nursery plants, honey, and compost produced as students get hands-on experience find their way to the roadside stand.

"The students enjoy being here," he said. However both market manager and students have faced stressful days, as in any retail operation, he said. Pressure from customers, for example, may be a trial "but the kids learn to deal with it," he said. "We try to satisfy everyone."

Students who work at the stand help customers, run the register, take care of the produce and plants, restock shelves, open and close the store, and price the products under Moran's direction.

In the summer three full-time, one part-time, and one intern aid Moran at the stand. During the school year, 7-8 students help at the stand, each giving about 12 hours a week.

In addition, the stand is "occasionally used as a lab where teachers will bring the class" to learn about retail sales and the workings of the stand, according to Moran.

Earnings from the stand go into the college's general fund.

About seven workers provide produce from the fields.

An ornamentals production manager, a full-time assistant, and six students in the spring (their busiest season) produce the colorful plants that draw customers to the stand. One student remains employed for the summer.

A Following

"We do have a following," said Moran. "The public wants our product.

"The private labeling has given us name recognition," said Moran. He cited examples of cus-

Canada Discovers BSE In Alberta

NCBA Says U.S. Beef Supply Is Safe

ALBERTA, Canada — The Canadian Minister of Agriculture announced May 20 the confirmation of a case of Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE, also known as mad cow disease) in an 6-year old cow in Alberta.

According to the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, (NCBA), the cow has never been in the U.S. The process of tracing the offspring of the infected cow is proceeding successfully and has resulted in finding the mother cow of the infected animal. Both the mother cow and the offspring will be depopulated and tested for BSE.

Also, a total of three farms have been quarantined because

IH Prototype Dealership Open During Red Power Roundup

MILLVILLE (Columbia Co.) — The Frank Bartlow International Dealership, Millville, closed in 1972, but will open for tours June 26-28 during the Red Power Roundup at Bloomsburg Fairgrounds.

The International Harvester (IH) prototype building evokes nostalgia that only "Red Power" fans can understand. Sort of like McDonald's golden arches, the prototype building design was identified throughout the U.S. as an IH dealership.

In 1946, the first day of deer season, Frank Bartlow began construction based on the IH Company's specifications. Offices are made of knotty pine and glass. The parts room houses bins constructed of lumber from trees harvested on the land on which it sets. Bartlow sawed and planed the wood himself.

The showroom has floor-to-ceiling glass windows that illuminate the International Harvester/ McCormick Deering wares that were on display. For the past 35 years, a 1928 10-20 McCormick

Compared to Tuesday's higher market, Choice slaughter steers sold fully 1.00 lower although the biggest losses were noted in the high Choice and Prime supply as prices were fully 2.00 lower. Bidding was very sporadic, at times it was relatively good for the high quality stock, only to falter when the lower grade cattle came in the ring; but all-in-all trade activity was well below average. Thursday's run was being compared to a very active market early in the week where prices were over 88.00 for Prime cattle. However, in all fairness both the Monday and Tuesday runs had the advantage of completing before news of BSE (mad cow disease) rocked the red meat industry. Therefore, when you take in consideration the dark cloud that the industry is being overcast by, an 80.00+ market is something to praise. There are definitely some differences of opinion to the BSE case in Canada, as some local producers feel it will boost local demand as packers will be forced to by U.S. cattle to keep their chains full, while others fear even though the borders are closed consumer confidence could dwindle. Unfortunately, only time will tell as we are very near the grilling season. Compared to the light early week Holstein run, slaughter Holsteins sold fully steady with a higher undertone noted on the higher quality stock. There were not enough heifers to test the market. Lean slaughter cows sold fully steady to 1.00 higher, while Breaking and Boning cows sold up to 2.00 higher. This increase came after prices were already 1.00-2.00 higher early in week. Bidding was very active, with buyers in strong attendance. The quality of the supply was also very good which lent support as the run reached nearly 500 head. Slaughter bulls sold with a higher undertone on a very good run that included over 100 head of very nice bulls. The supply included 631 head of steers, 470 cows, 78 heifers, 112 bulls, with 111 head of feeder cattle.

Note: The New Holland Sales Stable is holding a feeder cattle special on Friday May 23rd which is set to begin at 6:00 pm.

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2510	1306
LAST WEEK	2294	1190
LAST YEAR	2004	1127

Compared to last week, slaughter steers opened the week up to 1.00 higher, with closing week prices fully 1.00-2.00 lower. There were record-breaking live cattle prices this week in Lancaster County as Prime steers on Monday sold at 88.25. Nationally, BSE (mad cow disease) was found in a Canadian cow on Tuesday, which sent a ripple through the beef industry. The Board reacted harshly as we saw the first limit-down losses in quite some time. However, the cash trade still holds a healthy premium to the soon to end May contract, and with the June contract closing at 73.15 on Thursday the western direct feedyards hold around a 7.00 premium on their cattle. However, due to the BSE case, especially since it has finally hit so close to home, there is now a dark cloud of skepticism over the red meat industry. The borders have been closed, although it has yet to be measured what kind of effect the outbreak will have on the U.S. market. It is definitely a double-edged sword, as many local producers feel the closing of the border will turn into an increasing demand for U.S. cattle. On the other hand, if Americans fear that the BSE case is in fact to close for comfort, the wavering consumer confidence alone could send prices tumbling. While many households throughout the U.S. are beginning to knock the dust off of their backyard grills, it will be a great measure in the confidence people have in the outstanding product known as U.S. beef. Slaughter Holstein steers sold with a firmer undertone throughout

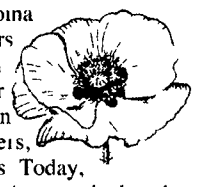
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 26–JUNE 1, 2003

NEW MOON, MAY 31

RED POPPIES AND PEACE

Since World War I, poppies have been a symbol of remembrance at Memorial Day (May 26 this year) The red poppy was used to symbolize the blood of those who died in service to their countries The idea started in 1918 when American Moina Michael read the poem "In Flanders Fields," written by Canadian John McCrae in 1915 during World War I She began wearing poppies in memoriam and sold them to others, using the proceeds to help veterans Today, donations to veterans' groups are often marked with a token paper red poppy



In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row.

–Lt Colonel John McCrae Canadian medical officer (1872–1918)

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the pigs are carrying straw in their mouths, look for high winds.

OPINION

Agriculture: Cornerstone Of The Fair Industry

Agriculture is the cornerstone of the fair industry. It is the one main attraction that makes fairs different from other entertainment venues. All people have a little "country" in their souls and each of our fairs "play up" agriculture to the city folks who come to visit.

In 1790, at about the time the U.S. was founded, 90 percent of its citizens were "gainfully employed" in agriculture, according to estimates from the USDA. As of 2002, the USDA estimates only 1.9 percent of Americans are farmers.

With these shrinking numbers, agriculture is promoted in a slightly different light than it was years ago. Even though we have fewer people in the production of agriculture products, we are all still eating and still clothed better than ever.

Education is an important way to maintain the viability of Pennsylvania agriculture. Informing the consumer where their food and fiber comes from, and how it gets to them, is critical if Pennsylvania agriculture is to prosper.

Because rules, regulations, and laws are passed by the nonfarming majority, the farmer is governed by people not involved in and often not educated about the industry. This situation is irreversible. Never again will farmers be the major audience in society.

Anti-agriculture groups have amassed huge amounts of resources and their propaganda is effective and far-reaching. They are impacting farming by way of negative public opinion. The farmer is at the mercy of legislators, who, for the most part, are uninformed or misinformed. They often vote according to the current mood and opinions of their constituents. Thus, agriculture's future depends on educating the nonfarming public.

The fair industry is one of many venues that can play a role in educating the public about agriculture. Fairs throughout history have

To Practice Careful Biosecurity On Your Dairy Farm

The government of Canada confirmed on Tuesday that the brain tissue from an 8-year-old cow in Alberta, Canada has tested positive for Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE, also called "Mad Cow Disease"). The Canadian government has emphasized that the meat from the animal did not enter the food or feed supply. The herd of origin is being destroyed after tissue samples are taken, even though BSE is not necessarily transmitted among cows in a herd.

The last confirmed case of BSE in Canada was in 1993, from a cow that had been imported from the U.K. There have been no cases in the U.S ever confirmed, even with extensive testing.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman announced that, "The USDA is placing Canada under its BSE restriction guidelines and will not accept any ruminants or ruminant products from Canada pending further investigation."

Although this isolated incident should not alarm local farmers, Lancaster County Dairy Agent Beth Grove reminds us we should always keep in mind good biosecurity practices on the farm.

The first step is to identify your risk areas. Where is your farm vulnerable? Viruses and bacteria can enter your livestock facility on animals including livestock, wild animals, pets, and insects. People, including visitors, employees, and yourself can carry pathogens onto your operation. Disease organisms can also be carried in livestock feed, water, bedding, and soil as well as in the air via dust and aerosols. Additionally equipment and vehicles can transport diseases on tires, floorboards, mud, and road dirt.

It is critical that you take several steps to prevent introduction of diseases. If you must purchase animals, buy from a "clean source" — test new cattle for mastitis, Johne's Disease, BVD, and Leukosis. Isolate new cattle and calves wherever possible and milk the new cows last for 3-4 weeks following purchase. Keep cattle haulers and their trucks away from livestock areas and bring bull calves or cull animals to the truck rather than having the hauler enter your barns. Post a sign asking visitors not to enter dairy barn without permission. Ask neighbors and visitors to wear clean boots in the barn. Limit access to sick and calving pens. Don't be embarrassed to ask folks to follow this routine.

Feed and care for the youngest animals before handling older animals. Limit heifer and calf access to cow facilities and feed to prevent the spread of Johne's Disease. Don't allow heifers to "clean up" cow feed; minimize feed contamination by rodents, animals, etc.; keep livestock feed stored in a clean, dry place; and keep dogs and cats away from feed bunks and water troughs.

Finally, if you haven't already done so, develop a plan for your farm. Work with your veterinarian, nutritionist, extension agent, etc., to develop a plan to reduce the chances of spreading or importing new infections. Talk to your family and employees about biosecurity. This is too important an issue to take lightly!

To Scout For Asparagus Aphids

Asparagus aphids are powdery pale green to fluorescent green in color and only 1/16th of an inch in length. They have six legs, two prominent antennae, and a pair of tailpipe-like appendages on their abdomen. When disturbed they scurry away and hide in cracks in the soil or under trash. Damage from this pest has been reported in Pennsylvania and in New Jersey this year.

The asparagus aphid is native to Eastern Europe and the Mediterranean area. The first infestation in North America was noticed in New York in 1969. Since that time, the aphid has been reported in New Jersey, Delaware, Rhode Island, Maryland, Pennsylvania. Virginia, North Carolina, and Washington. Asparagus is the only known food plant of this aphid.

Asparagus aphids feed on cladophylls (modified leaves) and under bracts. They extract sap through their needle-like mouth parts. Heavily infested seedlings may form rosettes or shrivel and die. Similar infestations on older plants may cause severe dwarfing. While most of the time the feeding is done on the fern stage of asparagus, this aphid can feed on the spears and cause a twisted, bent appearance. The affected spears can turn pale yellow green and grow slowly.

In most years, predators, parasites, and diseases have kept this aphid from becoming a serious pest in most areas. However, it has been reported that the aphid population is worse following a dry year in the previous season.

If you have a problem, the aphids can be controlled with 1 quart per acre of Malathion 57EC. If you choose to spray, remember there is a 12-hour reentry interval and a one-day-to-harvest limitation.

Editor:

Greetings from the secretary of agriculture.

As a farmer, I understand the needs of agriculture and I am extremely excited about the opportunity to represent the agriculture community. As secretary, my goal is to ensure that Pennsylvania is a welcome environment for agriculture — all agriculture — both large and small, and traditional and nontraditional agriculture entities.

With more than $4 billion in cash receipts last year and as our leading economic enterprise, agriculture is important to Pennsylvania. Gov. Rendell recognizes that a strong agricultural economy is important to a strong state economy. We all know that growing is something agriculture does well and as a result, agriculture and agribusiness will have an integral role in jump-starting the economy.

Economic development and

ARE YOU ABLE?

Background Scripture:
Mark 10:32-52.
Devotional Reading:
John 20:24-31.

Lots of people come to God in order to use him. Early in our lives we may come to God so that we can pass an exam or make the team. Later, it may be an attempt to meet a crisis or find release from an "impossible situation."

Some people come because they are seeking to be healed of something that has baffled or resisted their physicians or for help in coping with a family member, friend, or foe. Or it may represent an attempt to extricate ourselves from something we've gotten ourselves into.

There's nothing wrong in coming to God that way. Lots of people in the Bible started that way. But, although it is a suitable entry level, it is not where we are intended to stay. God wants to help us in our trials and tribulations, but he also wants to use us to accomplish his will and purpose in the world.

In Mark 8:32-33, we see that, when Jesus foretells the passion that awaits him, Peter fails to understand him and he earns Jesus' rebuke: "Get behind me, Satan! For you are not on the side of God, but of men." Peter misunderstood the essence of who Jesus is and what he will do. Then, in Mark 10:33-34, Jesus again proclaims the passion awaiting him in Jerusalem and, once again, the disciples — or at least two of them, James and John — misunderstand.

Whatever We Ask

We cannot help but wonder at the audacity of the request by James and John: "Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you" (Mk. 10:35). If, for nothing else, we need to give them an "A" for sheer honesty. Many of us feel that way but know better than to verbalize it. The sincerity, if immaturity, of their request indicates that they really don't understand what following Jesus is all about. It is not so much that they are asking something from Jesus, but the manner in which they ask it, as if Jesus was indebted to them, as if they were Sinbad the Sailor releasing a genie from a bottle. . . .

Perhaps even Jesus is a bit stunned and he responds: "What do you want me to do for you?" Their reply is even more shocking: "Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your glory." They assumed that, when they got to Jerusalem, that Jesus would be acclaimed the Messiah king and begin his reign. Since the seats directly to the right and left of the throne were always places or highest royal authority, they were seeking places of privilege in a coming earthly kingdom. They still didn't have a clue as to who and what Jesus is. . . .

Jesus knows this: "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I drink, or to be baptized with the baptism with which I am baptized?" (10:38). The "cup" and "baptism" here are symbolic of the passion that lies before him. When they reply, "We are able," we may assume that they are sincere — but wrong, just as often we are wrong when we make similar pledges. Theirs are words of optimism, not faith. Optimism may result from underestimating the threat or challenge that faces us. Faith sees clearly the danger, but looks beyond it to trust in God's presence and help.

The Nerve!

When they heard this exchange between Jesus, James and John, they are furious with them. Could it be that their anger resulted from their own expectations of prominence or precedence in the Messianic Kingdom?

I think so, because the next words of Jesus see directed at all the disciples, not just James and John: "You know that those who are supposed to rule over the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them. But is shall not be so among you; but whoever would be great among you must be your servant, and whoever would be first among you must be slave of all" (10:42-44).

Once again we find Jesus not as a repairman who comes to make little repairs and adjustments in our lives, but a revolutionary who comes to turn us and the world upside down. How different that is from the tame and unobtrusive faith lived out by most of us — including me.

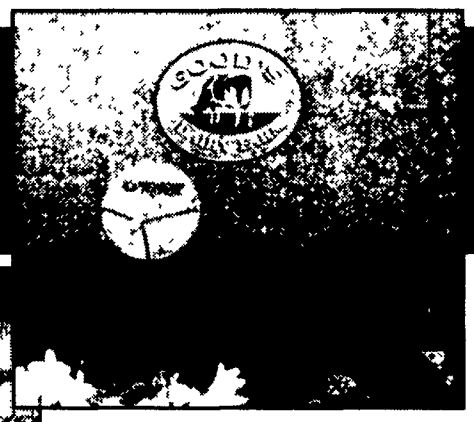
"WAFFLE SLAT" Syri-Con Corporation

"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

Use Label Rates to Keep Glyphosate Working for You

Whether due to the early success of glyphosate in cleaning up Roundup Ready® soybean fields or recent low commodity prices, we've seen an alarming practice that may be partly responsible for some recent weed control lapses with glyphosate That would be the practice of cutting rates

Often, the problem may be as simple as weather having delayed post applications In those cases, an applicator may need to bump up rates to control weeds that have grown to new heights Weeds like lambsquarters are very difficult to control post vs preemerge or early post, as its waxy surface can harden and make it more difficult for glyphosate to penetrate the plant

Whatever the reason, cutting rates is a dangerous practice because it gives weeds the opportunity to become tolerant to glyphosate With glyphosate-resistant marestail spreading throughout the Atlantic States and mid-South, and growers reporting cases of tolerance or suspected resistance to waterhemp in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois, cutting rates can only lead to weed control problems

By following label guidelines, you'll not only receive the maximum impact of your glyphosate investment, you'll protect the effectiveness of one of your best weed control tools for years to come

When using Glyphomax* Plus herbicide, we recommend the following rates 24 ounces for weeds 1 to 3 inches in height, 32 ounces at 4 to 8 inches, and 48 ounces for weeds 8 to 18 inches

A complementary practice is adding an economical rate of a residual chemistry like FirstRate* herbicide with glyphosate Adding another mode of action to post sprays is an effective way to manage tolerance or resistance concerns

To learn more about using Glyphomax Plus or FirstRate herbicides, contact your local ag retailer

USDA RELEASES UPDATED 2003 OUTLOOK

- Milk production to increase 1 percent.
- Consumption up 2 percent.
- Class III and IV to average $10/CWT.

USDA just released their updated market outlook for the balance of 2003, as well as for 2004. Since no one at this point cares about 2004, let's instead focus on what lies ahead for this year.

Basically, USDA is expecting milk prices to remain fairly low for the remainder of the year, despite market expectations (Chicago Mercantile Exchange futures) that prices will improve more robustly by the fall.

The latest forecast is provided in the Livestock, Dairy, and Poultry Outlook report produced by the Economic Research Service. These reports have been traditionally very pessimistic on market price outlook and always predict more milk production than actually occurs. This time it is different.

USDA economists are forecasting that the milk supply will grow just under one percent in 2003 from year-ago levels. This forecast simply reflects existing data that show milk producers have been slow to adjust to very low milk prices. Most producers that have expanded in 2002 have already populated their barns by now. So USDA economists expect a gradual reduction in the rate of growth in the U.S. milk supply. I would concur that a forecast of one percent growth in the milk supply for this year is reasonable.

Next, USDA expects consumption of milk and dairy products (on a milkfat and solids-not-fat basis) to grow about two percent this year. They report that "dairy demand fails to catch fire." Still, a two percent growth rate is fairly decent, especially considering demand grew just 0.5 percent last year to 170.5 billion pounds on a milk-equivalent, milkfat basis. My guess is that the USDA economists were expecting low producer prices [illegible] lower than this [illegible] in 2003 will translate into low retail prices. Those lower retail prices for milk, butter, cheese, etc., should translate into stronger sales.

The problem with this expectation, however, is that retail prices for milk and dairy products have not dropped as much as farm gate milk prices have, and high U.S. unemployment will continue to curtail dairy consumption. My expectation is that consumption of dairy products will grow less than one percent this year. Thus stocks will likely be higher than what USDA is expecting.

That brings us to USDA's outlook for Class III and IV prices. The bottom line is they are expecting both prices to be in the range of $9.70-$10.30 per CWT for a mean of about $10. This of course is very pessimistic. It suggests that when it's all said and done, milk prices this year will have been worse than last year!

Unfortunately, I would have to concur with USDA on this forecast. I expect Class III prices will be a little higher that USDA's forecast, rising closer to $11 per CWT for Class III by the fall. Class IV [illegible]

USDA is hinting that there may be another "tilt" in the butter/powder price.

Generally speaking, unless the milk supply adjusts and demand picks up, milk prices will remain at fairly low levels, increasing by only $1-$2 per CWT between now and the fall.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the load plus or minus 30-.40 per pound. Some early weaned lots have a slide of .50-1.00 per pound. Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old. Estimated lean value is projected to use slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
May 21, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3376-1.4790. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3485-1.4790 mostly 1.3594-1.3920.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9800; Class III - spot prices - .7400-.8000.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 0, Out 209; Last Week: In 0, Out 153; Last Year: In 0, Out 109; SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to recent changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

During April, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.68 billion pounds, up 0.8% from April 2002. The following are the April-to-April changes for selected states: Texas +.5%, New York -0.1%, Pennsylvania -1.4%, Vermont - 2.6%, Florida -2.7%, Virginia -7.1%, and Kentucky -11.1%.

This week, many trade contacts expressed concerned about what reaction consumers will have to the report of a Canadian beef cow testing positive for BSE. The flush appears to be over in most of the Southeast and just getting to it in the North. Milk production is easing in most of the Deep South and into the mid-South. It is holding relatively steady in the Middle Atlantic areas and up into New York and Southern New England. Milk output is still climbing slightly in the far North. The weather has remained cool in most of the region, which is helping maintain the milk flow. Some pasture growth is noted, but is has often been too wet in the Northern areas for cows to be turned out. Heavy rains continue to plague parts of the Southeast and some localized flooding is causing some delays to farm pick-ups. Many Southern schools are recessing this week. This is slowing the need for bottled milk and forcing more milk into manufacturing channels. Southeastern manufacturing capacity is pressured, but contacts report that there is room for more milk should it be needed. Florida's milk exports jumped significantly this week and are expected to remain heavy for the next few weeks. Their milk is clearing to Southeastern and Middle Atlantic plants. Further north, bottled milk sales are steady at best. Surplus milk volumes are heavy and expected to remain heavy through the Memorial Day weekend. However, some contacts feel that they are in great shape to be able to handle whatever milk is available during the holiday weekend.

The condensed skim market is steady to weaker, mostly steady. With all the weekend milk expected, some producers feel that it will be difficult to move wet solids without discounting prices. Other makers will just dry their unsold volumes. Demand for wet solids is slower this week.

The fluid cream market is mostly steady. Spot prices are mixed, but generally down slightly as the CME butter average declined less than a quarter of a cent last week. Offerings are increasing and Class II demand, though good, is not as brisk as it was last week. Spot sales to cream cheese makers are steady to occasionally improved. Bottling is steady at moderate to heavy levels. Ice cream production is mixed. Some reports indicate that ice cream output is rather sluggish due to cooler weather, while others say the cream sales to ice cream makers are good. The cooler weather is doing little for soft serve mix sales, but the beginning of summer (Memorial Day) should give sales in resort areas a boost. Churning activity is moderate to heavy.

tomers giving the stand's wares to friends who call to get more supplies. He has shipped as far away as California.

"We don't grow everything that we sell, but we try to," he said. Most of the products that are sold, however, are grown by Delaware Valley College students and staff. Even if the produce does not originate at the college, it comes from a local grower, such as the stand's milk and eggs.

Moran also prefers supporting Delaware Valley College graduates who are selling produce in the area.

In all, the campus' greenhouses, nursery, 35 acres of fields, apiary area, and orchard provide products for the stand.

Even the college's dairy farm has something to contribute. The operation's composting research product provides compost sold at the stand.

The farm market starts off the season by selling flowers for Easter, which transitions into Mother's Day flower sales.

"Our first major crop is strawberries, probably in about three weeks," said Moran, who estimates that the crop is about two weeks behind schedule because of the cool spring.

After strawberries come blueberries, which will be followed by vegetables available in July. Later, Moran and the students will sell peaches, summer apples, fall apples, mums, pumpkins, and gourds.

With a supply of Christmas trees from a local producer and Delaware Valley College graduate, the season doesn't end until Christmas. Wreaths and arrangements at that time also draw customers to the stand.

Additionally, to add to the activity in the cooler seasons, the college runs a poinsettia trial in mid-November. The blooms are sold around Thanksgiving. In addition to the poinsettia trial, the college runs a pansy trial in the fall.

In the fall, if students haven't already requested to help out at the stand, the financial aid office assigns students to the stand. This arrangement helps with tuition payments but also allows students to work toward the 900-960 hours that they need in their major.

Marianne Petrino, a junior and part-time employee at the stand this summer, comes from Franklin Lakes, N.J. She chose to stay at the school and work over the summer since "it's an opportunity that I can't really get (at home)," she said.

She plans to work part-time at the stand and part-time in the fields over the summer months. This is her second summer working at the stand.

One of the things that Petrino has had to learn is the water and sun requirements of plants, in addition to learning seasons of fruit. "That information has become very relevant" as she fields customer questions, said Petrino.

Ornamentals.

Leslie Cole serves as ornamentals production manager at the college.

Besides learning basic supply and demand principles, students learn about seasons and varieties of plants as they experiment with new and improved varieties to market at the stand, according to Cole.

Additionally, "the fact that the students are learning to grow the highest quality product that they can is certainly educational," said Cole.

In addition, "without the farm market, we wouldn't have a need to grow these things — it is a business," she said. "It's good clean fun and you can make money doing it," she said.

Most of the plants grown in the greenhouses go to the stand. "At this time of year, 80 percent of what we produce is for the farm market," Cole said.

During the school year, however, student projects, and plants used as teaching tools, find their homes in the greenhouses. Rarer varieties of plants are grown for the campus' garden gazebo, for example, which provides another teaching opportunity.

Approximately 2,200 flats of annuals come from the greenhouse to the market. Moreover 400 10-inch hanging baskets, "a big seller for us," are produced in the greenhouses.

Also, "within the last couple of years, combination planters have become popular," she said. The 10-inch planters may include "something trailing, something with height, and different textures and colors."

Cole keeps the variety of sizes of pots to a minimum for simplicity in growing and pricing at the market. "Plus consumers are not overwhelmed," she said.

Cole herself has learned several lessons in marketing. She cited the example of the year they planted flowers in white pots and saw lagging sales. The next year the plastic terra-cotta pots helped sales to pick up, she said.

Four separate state-of-the-art houses are joined by several other different types of greenhouses stationed on campus.

Although the other greenhouses provide an opportunity for students to become familiar with a variety of greenhouses, the newer models "are what the students are going to see when they get out into the workplace," she said.

The modern greenhouses allow Cole and the student to grow a variety of plants. A computer-controlled heating and cooling system makes it possible for "each house to be set for a specific temperature range," she said.

The houses are set for cool weather to "almost tropical" plant varieties.

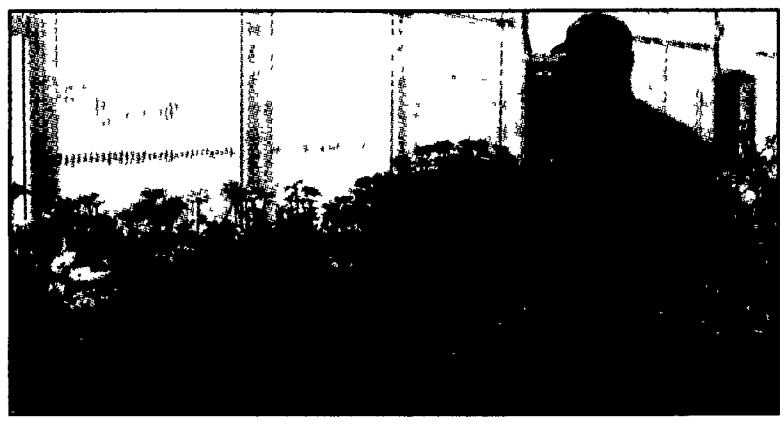
By June the houses are emptied, allowing for cleaning and maintenance work. "The students do a lot of repairs as well" — another learning opportunity, according to Cole.

Learning responsibility is one of the key elements of working at the stand, according to Moran. "Students without prior job experience learn what it is to have a job," he said.

Moran, who had prior experience in the corporate world, believes that it is important for the students to operate as though the stand is a corporate organization.

Plans for a new, larger market are under develoment, with more details to be decided in the coming weeks.

Marianne Petrino, a junior and part-time employee at the stand this summer, restocks shelves.



Kirby Snyder, a senior ornamental horticulture/ landscape contracting student, will work full-time in the greenhouse and nursery this summer.

Pennsylvania Gets $600,000 For Johne's Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff recently announced that the state has received $628,108 in funding from the USDA for efforts to research and control Johne's disease in the commonwealth.

Recognizing the significant financial and herd health impact of Johne's on the cattle industry, USDA has launched a major funding effort to encourage states to conduct more research, industry education, and industry participation in state Johne's disease programs. Pennsylvania's strong history of efforts to control the disease has resulted in an immediate $628,108, with an additional $600,000 in funding available in October.

"These funds will be used to enhance our laboratory testing capability, provide incentives for cattle owners and veterinarians to participate in our Johne's Disease Program, and conduct further research in testing and control techniques," said Dr. Paul Knepley, chief of the Animal and Poultry Health Division at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA).

"Pennsylvania has long been considered a leader among states regarding Johne's disease research and control efforts," Wolff said. "These funds will enable Pennsylvania to continue our tradition of excellence in Johne's disease efforts."

Currently, PDA administers one of the longest standing voluntary control programs in the country. The new National Johne's Disease Program Standards were developed in large part based on Pennsylvania's experience.

Johne's Disease is a chronic, progressive, bacterial disease affecting cattle and other ruminant animals. There is no cure or protective vaccine for Johne's Disease.

For more information, please contact Knepley at (717) 783-8300.

Fruit Growers Gather For Tour At Cherry Hill Orchards

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — When it comes to growing tree fruit, Dick and Tom Haas aren't afraid of trying new ways to do it better.

The father and son team at

Tom Haas of Cherry Hill Orchard checks a trap used for monitoring tufted apple bud moth populations.

Cherry Hill Orchards near New Danville has been a leader in putting innovative practices to work, including the most updated pest management tools available.

About 40 fruit growers gathered at Cherry Hill Tuesday evening to see the Haas's operation and take home some new knowledge to put to use in their own orchards. The annual Twilight Fruit Growers' Tour is organized by Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lancaster County and hosted by a local orchard each year.

Over the past few decades, Cherry Hill has developed a thriving pick-your-own operation and farm market, offering customers a wide selection of homegrown fruits, including apples, cherries, peaches, nectarines, plums, and apricots.

Managing apple trees was the focus of the orchard tour Tuesday night.

Sometimes experiments and discoveries happen by chance at Cherry Hill. In the fall of 2001, for example, the Haases cut all the lateral branches off an aging stand of Red Delicious apple trees. They were planning to remove the trees — trunk, root, and all — to make way for new plantings. However, the next growing season rolled around before the Haases had a chance to clear out the trees.

They discovered that the old trunks sprouted a healthy crop of new branches. Now in their second year of growth, the branches are showing signs of good potential for future production. The Haases have decided to let them go and see what happens.

"With growth like this, you can't complain," Tom said. "You have all new wood."

According to Dick, the unplanned experiment just shows one of the principles of horticulture: "Growing plants is an evolution," he said.

The technique for renewing apple trees could potentially double the life of some tree and root stock combinations, allowing them to remain productive for 30 to 40 years, he said.

For insect control, the Haases have been employing several innovative techniques that help reduce pesticide use considerably.

Targeting insects and pinpointing spray times is becoming increasingly important, Tom said. That's partly because effective, labeled chemicals are getting scarce on the market. Available chemicals are also much more time-specific than chemicals of the past.

The Haases have been using a global information system (GIS)/ weather-tracking system since 1996 — shortly after the technology first became available to orchardists.

Greg Krawczyk, Penn State fruit entomologist, right, and Tom Haas discuss innovative pest management methods used in apple production.

Called SkyBit, the method was developed at Penn State to predict site-specific hatch dates for many fruit pests, including tufted apple bud moths, coddling moths, oriental fruit moths, and peach tree borers.

SkyBit uses degree-day data along with GIS mapping to provide tracking information on insect hatch times within targeted locations of about a one-mile radius, according to Dr. Greg Krawczyk, Penn State fruit entomologist on hand during the tour.

During growing season, the SkyBit information can be accessed daily via computer or fax. It also provides up-to-date weather data, including wind forecasts, to help plan spray times.

Along with SkyBit, the Haases rely on a variety of insect traps to monitor pest numbers in the orchards.

"The traps are valuable in that they help verify the info you're getting (from SkyBit)," Tom said.

The Haases have also been using mating disruption technology — small, simple dispensers that are hung on trees and slowly release female insect pheromones (hormones that stimulate male insects). The pheromone scent in the air confuse males and prevents them from finding mates, thus nixing the reproductive cycle.

Krawczyk said it's important that fruit growers are aware of methods other than pesticides to control pests. While mating disruption, traps, and SkyBit require more intensive management and observation than the old methods of applying pesticides by rote, the savings in chemical costs can be significant.

Tom Haas said that new integrated pest management technology will definitely play a big part in the future at Cherry Hill Orchards.

Dick Haas talks about the history of some older apple tree stands at Cherry Hill Orchards.

The tour also included a rundown of fruit-thinning agents available to growers.

Dr. Rob Crassweller, Penn State pomologist, reviewed the best times to apply these growth inhibitors to trees in order to be most effective.

Choosing the right agents and applying them at the right time are keys to getting the best thinning results.

Conditions this season should allow thinning agent applications to do a good job with a minimum of hand-thinning, according to Crassweller.

"In general, I think thinners are going to work really well this year," he said.

This year's twilight tour was about two weeks later than it is normally scheduled.

Tim Elkner, Lancaster County horticulture agent and tour organizer, said he was pleased with the number of growers who turned out. Attendance was greater than he expected.

West Nile Virus Equine Vaccine Receives Full Licensure

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — With spring here and mosquitoes in the offing, it is another West Nile Virus season. Now is the time to vaccinate or revaccinate your horses. It is important to do this now before the mosquitoes begin to fly in search of blood meals again with the coming of the warmer weather.

It is recommended that if your horse has never been vaccinated before, that you begin the process as soon as possible. The vaccination requires two shots. After the initial injection is given, a booster shot needs to be administered three weeks later. If your horse has already been vaccinated it is recommended that a booster is given yearly to protect against the virus.

It is very important to realize that there is no cross protection between vaccines. This means that if your horse is vaccinated against Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE), Western Equine Encephalitis (WEE), or Venezuelan Equine Encephalitis (VEE) for example, it will not be protected against the West Nile Virus.

In 2002 there were a reported 97 equine cases in Pennsylvania. Most horses are able to recover from the virus, however, those horses that are affected the most severely may die or need to be euthanized. This is only necessary in the most extreme cases of the neurological disease.

A horse becomes infected with the virus after being bitten by an infected mosquito. After being injected the virus multiplies in the horse's blood cells, crosses the blood brain barrier, and infects the brain.

Some of the symptoms that occur are loss of appetite, fever, weakness or paralysis of hind limbs, stumbling, walking in circles, muzzle twitching, or coma. If your horse shows any of these signs, contact your veterinarian as soon as possible.

There are also ways to try and protect your horses from being exposed to mosquitoes.

The easiest ways to do this is to eliminate any standing water from your property that may serve as breeding grounds for mosquitoes.

Remove discarded tires, clean clogged roof gutters, empty or refill water troughs, and dispose of any unwanted container that could hold water. Avoid turning on lights inside the stable during evening and overnight hours. If lights are needed you can place incandescent lights outside the stable to attract mosquitoes away from the horses.

On Feb. 6 a license for the vaccine was reissued to change the license status from conditional to full licensure. This means that all the restrictions of a conditional license have been lifted following a full year of research on the vaccine itself. It has been found that there is a 94 percent efficacy for the prevention of viremia in horses that are vaccinated.

For more information visit www.westnile.state.pa.us or www.cdc.gov and search for West Nile Virus.

WHIP Assists In Conservation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — To help farmers and ranchers restore and protect wildlife habitat, the USDA provides technical and financial assistance through a voluntary conservation program reauthorized in the 2002 Farm Bill.

The Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP) includes the option of a 15-year agreement, in addition to the standard five and 10-year agreements, for landowners who voluntarily limit future use of their land in order to develop upland, wetland, riparian, and aquatic habitat areas.

Since WHIP began in 1998, about 11,000 participants have enrolled more than 1.6 million acres into the program.

These agreements fund up to 100 percent for implementing practices specifically targeted to restore and protect essential plant and animal habitat. NRCS state conservationists, with advice from their state technical committee, will identify essential plant and animal habitat within the state that is eligible for increased cost-share assistance.

Additional information on WHIP and other conservation programs is available on the Web at http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/farmbill/2002/products.html.

Dairy Producer Testifies Before Congress Subcommittee

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Challenging times call for cooperative efforts, said Gordon Hoover, Land O'Lakes Dairy Committee chairperson, to members of the U.S. House of Representatives' Committee on Agriculture's Subcommittee on Department Operations, Oversight, Nutrition and Forestry at a public hearing in Washington, D.C.

Hoover was invited to testify at the hearing, addressing the state of the nation's dairy industry on behalf of dairy farmers in the Northeast.

"Eighteen months ago, the price I received for my milk dropped 34 percent, and it has stayed there ever since. Right now, the milk price isn't even covering our costs," said Hoover, who milks 120 cows in Gap. "With conditions as drastic as they are, it's now more important than ever that producers work with other producers, through industry organizations, within our cooperatives like Land O'Lakes, and with government officials to increase dairy farmer profitability"

Hoover commended the federal government on programs such as the Dairy Price Support Program, the Dairy Checkoff Program, and the Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP). "Programs like these are working to benefit producers, and we need you to give them your continued support," he said. "We also need you to keep the farmer's best interest in mind when developing legislation that affects dairy trade obligations, environmental restrictions and income subsidies."

Urging passage of H.R. 1160, which would establish new tariffs on Milk Protein Concentrate imports, Hoover said this legislation is an important part of the industry's three-prong strategy to address MPC. "I congratulate the 100-plus U.S. representatives who have agreed to sponsor this bill, and I encourage more of you to do so."

Voicing reservations regarding a proposed free trade agreement with Australia, Hoover cautioned that this type of agreement would be a one-way street for dairy. "Instead, I encourage the administration to focus its efforts on negotiating a comprehensive, multilateral agreement in the WTO," he said. "In that forum, dairy farmers have a reasonable hope of gaining new markets."

Hoover commented that producers are taking more responsibility in shaping their future through programs such as the industry-led, farmer-funded, self-help program, "Cooperatives Working Together" or CWT, proposed by National Milk Producers Federation. However, he told those at the hearing, "our industry still needs your help and support.

"Our goal as dairy farmers, and as an industry, is to create a marketplace where supply and demand work together to generate reasonable and realistic profits for producers, without substantial dependence on government subsidies," he said. "Anything you can do to help us build and sustain that marketplace is greatly appreciated."

NRCS Accepts Applications For EQIP Funds

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is accepting applications for FY03 Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) participation until Thursday, May 29.

Applications for cost-share funding to install conservation practices for the treatment of resource concerns involving livestock/poultry issues, grazing, and cropland erosion across the state are accepted on a continual basis.

Funded through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) as part of the 2003 Farm Bill, funding will be available through multiple county "pooling" areas, which will rank applications based on criteria that include national, state, and local priorities. Applications have been accepted at NRCS field offices throughout the state since the Farm Bill was signed.

Pennsylvania received approximately $6.9 million dollars to be used for cost-share assistance. Each of the 20 pool areas will receive a base allocation of $200,000 with additional dollars based on their state percentage of cropland and livestock. Ranking criteria and other program information will be available on the NRCS Website at http://www.pa.nrcs.usda.gov within a few days.

Soil Assessment Workshop June 10

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. — Good farming starts with good soil, and two Mercer County farms with an unusual collection of soil types and conditions will be the center of attention June 10 as the summer education season gets under way.

Cherry Grove Farm and Cherry Grove Organic Farm will co-host "Get Your Hands Dirty: Evaluating Soil Health," Wednesday, June 10, at the twin farms, located on Rt. 206 in Lawrenceville, N.J. The event begins with an informal brown-bag dinner hour at 5 p.m., with workshop activities starting at 6 p.m. (Because of the nature of the activities planned, the event will be postponed until June 11 in the event of rain.)

The evening twilight meeting will feature one-on-one soil test consultations and tours of Cherry Grove Farm, a grass-based livestock farm, and Cherry Grove Organic Farm, a certified organic vegetable farm. Interactive activities will include real-world application of soil maps, reading the landscape for soil information, using soil pits and soil profiles, and a collectino of low-tech, low-cost farmer-run assessments of soil chemistry and physical properties.

Course presenters include Joe Heckman, soil specialist at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station; Dan Kluchinski, Mercer County agricultural agent; and Chris Smith, soil specialist with the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

The free event is sponsored by the Northeast Organic Farming Association of New Jersey and is open to any farmer. Because of the hands-on nature of the event, registration is limited. For more information or to register, call NOFA-NJ at (609) 737-6848 or visit the NOFA-NJ Website at www.nofanj.org and click on "Farmer Events."

Our Dairy Plus Special Technology issue on June 28 focuses on ways producers can use the latest technology to aid them in improving efficiency and expanding the bottom line. Included are reports on a freestall sand separator, robotic milking, and other new items. Also included are a stray voltage update, veterinary reports, cooperative and dairy business news, and a calendar of events.

Bull Proofs For Colored Dairy Breeds, Ranked By Net Merit

As a new service to our dairy readers, Lancaster Farming has scheduled the publication of regular bull proofs for the seven major dairy breeds.

The reports are released quarterly during the months of February, May, August, and November.

The colored breed top bull lists this week follow last week's publication of the Holstein list in Lancaster Farming.

The sires on the USDA lists are ranked by net merit (NM$). PTA stands for the average predicted transmitting ability for each of the categories listed, including milk yield, fat yield, fat percentage, protein yield, protein percentage, somatic cell score (SCS), and productive life (PL).

REL NM$ and REL Yield represent reliability in transmitting net merit and yield, respectively.

DPR stands for daughter pregnancy rate, a recent addition to the USDA bull proofs.

Also included are the number of herds and daughters evaluated in each sire's proof.

Canada Announces BSE

the infected animal spent time on those farms. All animals on these farms will be depopulated and tested for BSE, said NCBA.

USDA undersecretary Bill Hawks has told a Senate appropriations subcommittee hearing that Canadian officials indicated none of the quarantinedcattle were ever in the U.S.

According to Canadian officials, meat from the infected cow did not enter the food supply. The animal had been on the farm in Alberta for three years. Although BSE has not been shown to be transmitted among cows in a herd, as a precaution the herd in Alberta is being destroyed.

The USDA has stopped all cattle, beef, sheep, and goat imports from Canada until further notice. This includes all live animals and all ruminant animal food products.

The USDA has also sent technical team to Canada to assist in the investigation.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman said Tuesday, "I have spoken with Canada's Agriculture and Agri-Food Minister Lyle Vanclief a short time ago about Canada's investigation and feel that all appropriate measures are being taken in what appears to be an isolated case of BSE.

"Information suggests that risk to human health and the possibility of transmission to animals in the United States is very low," Veneman said.

"In 1997, the Food and Drug Administration prohibited the use of most mammalian protein in the manufacture of animal feed intended for cows and other ruminants to stop the way the disease is thought to spread."

Since 1989, the U.S. government has taken a series of preventative actions to protect against BSE. This includes USDA prohibitions on the import of live ruminants, such as cattle, sheep, goats and most ruminant products from countries that have or are considered to be at risk for BSE.

To date, no case of BSE has ever been found in the U.S., despite years of intensive testing for the disease.

"We do not have any cases of BSE in Pennsylvania or the United States," said Dr. John Enck, Pennsylvania' state veterinarian.

"We have been testing, and we had enhanced our surveillances last year," he said. Also last year "there were more than 20,000 head of cattle tested in the United States and they were all negative."

In addition, "BSE is transmitted by eating the prions (disease-causing protein particles) which occur in the feed from contaminated products," said Dr. John Enck, Pennsylvania's state veterinarian.

The animal must eat "rendered products that now, of course, would be illegal to feed — and have been illegal since 1997 in the United States and in Canada — to feed those particular products to animals.

"It is not like a virus — they have to eat the prion in order to get the disease," said Enck.

Veterinary drugs are not made from rendered cattle and there is no evidence of any association of-veterinary drugs with BSE.

According to the NCBA, consumers should continue to eat beef with confidence. The animal in question did not enter the food supply.

Americans can be confident in the safety of U.S. beef for a number of reasons, said the NCBA:

• The BSE agent is not found in meat. It is found in central nervous system tissue such as brain and spinal cord.

• All U.S. cattle are inspected by a veterinarian before going to slaughter. Animals with any signs of neurological disorder are not permitted to enter the human food chain and are tested for BSE. These samples are sent overnight to a federal laboratory, and the average turn-around time for the test is eight days.

• BSE affects older cattle, over 36 months of age. The vast majority of the cattle going to market in the U.S. are less than 24 months old. BSE has never been found in commercial cattle less than 24 months of age.

• The U.S. began a surveillance program for BSE in 1990 and was the first country without the disease within its borders to test cattle for the disease.

The surveillance system targets all cattle with any signs of neurological disorder as well as those over 30 months of age.• The U.S. banned imports of cattle and bovine products from countries with BSE beginning in 1989.

• A multi-year risk analysis conducted by Harvard University reported "the U.S. is highly resistant to any introduction of BSE."

• Some media reports are speculating a link between chronic wasting disease in deer and BSE in cattle. This is not the case, according to the NCBA. Multiple research projects indicate there is no cross species transmission under natural conditions. This includes a 10-year trial at Colorado State University, now in its sixth year, in which cattle are comingled in a secure area with CWD-infected deer.

According to NCBA officials, the U.S. has the safest food supply of any country in the world. Beef producers have enhanced product safety in recent years through checkoff-funded research and have specifically funded research that strengthens knowledge of BSE to help assure the security of U.S. beef products.

Red Power Roundup

Deering tractor with rubber tires, owned by Bartlow's grandson Rollie Bartlow, has been on display. During the open house, many other IH tractors, Cub Cadets, IH equipment, refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners, and IH memorabilia will be displayed.

The Bartlow building is unique in that it incorporates a basement beneath the showroom and parts room. The basement has a 12x12-foot door on the north end for easy excess to the street. This enabled a large area to store equipment that was delivered to the dealership.

The building also served as a social gathering for the community. The grand opening was celebrated with square dancing and plenty of food. For several years, the annual IH Pancake Days attracted crowds and promoted sales.

Today Tubby Bartlow, Frank's son, owns the building. With the help of family, friends, and the local International Harvester Collectors Club of Central Pennsylvania, Chapter 17, Bartlow refurbished the building to its original condition. The site has been the home of the growing Red Power Showdown for the past two years.

At the Red Power Roundup, June 26-28, at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds, busses will provide transportation to the Bartlow Dealership, about a 15-minute drive from the fairgrounds.

Bartlow and his family will be at the site to answer questions about the prototype building.

Scholarships Boost College Funds For Ag-Related Studies

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The seven recipients of Farm and Home Foundation scholarships are smart, hard working, and determined to enter an agriculture-related career field.

These qualities set them apart from other applicants, according to Leon Ressler, director of Lancaster County extension services.

Ressler, who was a former recipient of one of the scholarships awarded annually, said that scholarship amounts have grown from $400 to $4,000 since its inception in 1968. To date, 404 scholarships have been awarded to students who pursue agriculture or consumer science education.

The recipients, selected by Foundation committee members, include the following:

• Jeffrey Erb grew up working in his parents' (James and Romaine Erb's) fruit and vegetable growing business in Neffsville. Jeff is a former Lancaster Country Strawberry Roundup grand champion.

"I love working with plants," he said. "Studying landscape contracting seems like a natural fit."

He will head for Penn State's Main Campus for the four-year degree.

At Lancaster Mennonite, Jeff ran cross country, wrote for the school newspaper, and participated in school plays and musicals.

• J. Kyle Hershey said growing up on a dairy farm influenced him to seek a degree in animal sciences. Last year he attended Penn State's Governor's School of Ag Sciences, and knew for sure that Penn State Main Campus is the college of his choice.

After college graduation, Kyle hopes to return to his parents' (Clifford and Mary Lou Hershey's) farm, Mountville, and help make it more efficient. The Hersheys farm 400 acres, milk 100 cows, and raise 100 dairy beef.

At Lancaster Mennonite FFA, Kyle served as chaplain and received the Keystone and the Dekalb awards. He is a member of the National Honor Society.

Kyle is a member of the youth group at Rohrerstown Mennonite Church. He also volunteers with the Columbia Reuzit Shop and shovels snow for those in need during the winter months.

• Paul W. Hostetter is probably best known as a former Pennsylvania FFA president. The Lancaster Mennonite graduate deferred college plans to concentrate on FFA leadership responsibilities. When his term ended, Paul fulfilled a dream to lead guided elk hunts in the western U.S.

Leading hunts was exciting, but the work gave him no time to hunt elk for himself.

"It was a learning experience. I learned to work with all types of people and in all kinds of situations," Paul said.

He believes his work experience will assist him in completing college studies within a 3½-year period.

Unlike the other scholarship winners, Paul is already in college. He spent the past semester at Penn State University Main Campus, where he is studying poultry science with an ag business minor.

Paul grew up on his parents, James and Mary Louise Hostetter's, crop and hog farm in Holtwood. Paul has taken a special interest in poultry, which he believes offers many career opportunities.

Paul is a member of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club and Collegiate FFA. Both clubs, he said, volunteer their services to help with community and world needs. This included a World Hunger Project by helping with the Mennonite beef canning enterprise and making Easter baskets for needy children.

• Sarah Quigg is heading to the University of Delaware to prepare for agriculture education.

"I have taken ag classes since 10th grade and learned so much. FFA has given me so many opportunities to succeed, I'd like to give back by becoming an FFA teacher," Sarah said."I believe agriculture will continue to be influential in the world."

The 18-year-old daughter of Allen and Marie Quigg, Narvon, earned awards and a Keystone Degree in FFA. She is first vice president of her chapter.

At Pequea Valley, Sarah plays saxophone for marching, concert, jazz, and county bands, wind ensemble, and the school musical. She serves as treasurer for Interact, is yearbook manager, writes for the school newspaper, and is a member of the National Honor Society. She is active at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in New Holland, where she also substitute teaches for children's classes.

Sarah plans to run for a state FFA office. If she is selected, she will defer college plans for one year.

• Joshua A. Shenk is headed to Penn State Berks Campus to study agricultural business. The Lampeter-Strasburg senior did not grow up on the farm, but when he wanted a part-time job, he began working for dairy farmers Glen and Dana Good.

"It became much more than a job to me. I knew this was the direction I wanted to go with my life," Jeffrey said. "I see a need for farmers to keep the tradition to feed the world's growing population."

Joshua said that he enjoys all aspects of his farm job.

He lives with his parents Allen and Rosanne Shenk and a sister in Strasburg.

At school, Joshua is active in FFA and Fellowship of Christians, and served as yearbook business manager and as a sports statistician.

He is active in the Lampeter United Methodist Church and its youth group and helps annually with the Black Rock Ox Roast.

• Kate Sollenberger, at 18 years of age, has already gathered accolades for her entrepreneurship. She received the State FFA Star Agribusiness Award for starting an equine business and will compete at the national level in September.

Kate said that she buys, resells, and boards horses, gives riding lessons, trains horses, and shows them for others.

"I've been involved in all aspects of equines, so I tried to generate income to save for college," she said. Kate chose Delaware Valley College, where she will study ag education and minor in equine science.

She lives with her parents, Larry and Molly Sollenberger, on a 10-acre farmette in Ephrata. She received her first horse when she was eight years old. Since none of her family were into horses, Kate said the total work responsibility is hers.

During college, she plans to downsize to two horses, but again start up her business after earning a master's degree.

At Ephrata High School, Kate plays lacrosse and is president and student adviser of the FFA Chapter.

• Regina Zimmerman grew up with zebras, monkeys, and kangaroos as pets. With her parents, Paul and Brenda Zimmerman, she helped set up petting zoos, incorporating their collection of exotic animals and also helped on the family dairy farm in Lititz.

"I learned that I wanted to do something with animals and people," Regina said of her career choice to study animal science at Penn State Berks Campus. She'd like to work as an animal medic or in vet sales.

At Ephrata High School, Regina participates in track, cross-country, and FFA.

She is active in the youth group at Ephrata United Zion Church.

Livestock Projects Teach Responsibility

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — Win or lose, livestock competition at fairs is the training ground for future leaders. A child's dedication to their animal, whether it be a rabbit or a 1,100-pound steer is a special bond. This bond helps make the daily tasks of feeding the animal go a little smoother. As the project continues, the fitting and showing of the animal takes on new meaning as the youth realizes that it is his or her responsibility to train and get ready for the "command performance" in the showing at the fair.

Without even realizing it, other traits which will stay with the youngster are also being learned. The Josephson Institute of Ethics put together a curriculum a few years ago which identified six core values which describe the importance of youth livestock projects. They feel that the overall purpose of the project is to provide opportunities for young people to develop character. The character traits identified and some of the practices follow:

A. Trustworthiness — includes honesty, promise keeping, and loyalty.

- daily feeding, watering of animals (promise keeping)
- adheres to possession deadlines (honesty)
- adheres to withdrawal times on drugs and de-wormer
- only the appropriate use of drugs

B. Respect — includes courtesy and proper treatment of people and things.

- proper handling of animals treat humanely
- proper care of animals
- listens to and follows advice of advisors
- recognizes that animal projects are dependent on 4-H'er and provides the daily feed and water

C. Responsibility — includes the pursuit of excellence, accountability, and perseverance.

- daily feeding and watering (even on the busy, difficult days)
- goes beyond providing the daily needs of the animal in giving additional time and attention to produce a winner
- adheres to deadlines for entry forms and for arrival at livestock shows
- never gives up in the show ring (perseverance)

D. Fairness — involves consistently applying rules and standards appropriately for different age groups and ability levels.

E. Caring — promoting the well being of people and things in a young person's world. It denotes action and not just feelings.

This list is not complete, but shows that livestock projects offer numerous opportunities to build character.

Youth Contests

The state championship of the Youth Cattle Working Competition saw 10 teams of three FFA or 4-H members advancing to the state championship. Each team had earlier competed in one of three regional contests conducted in the spring.

Contestants were required to administer vaccinations, apply ear tags, treat for internal parasites, and apply other health products to three feeder cattle.

Teams were judged on their ability to decipher product label information to determine dosage rates, administration routes, and withdrawal times. Team members are also evaluated on how correctly and safely they administer the products, how safely they handle the cattle and how much time is required to treat the three animals.

The Grayson County D team took top honors by scoring 96 out of a possible 100 points. Team members included Will Osborne, Travis Eastridge, and Mikki Delp. The Pulaski County 4-H team placed second, and the Grayson County C team came in third.

Approximately 60 youth and adults participated in the Expo's Beef Stockman's Contest. The Stockman's contest is a comprehensive test of individuals' knowledge of the beef industry. Contestants identified breeds, equipment, feeds, retail beef cuts, evaluated beef cuts, and took a comprehensive test on the beef industry.

In the junior competition, the Giles County 4-H teams took top honors, with Frederick County placing second. Rounding out the junior team awards were the Montgomery County 4-H and two teams from Highland County.

Wyatt Hall of Giles County was the high junior individual. Chris Ellke of Amelia County placed second, and Ashley Roberts of Montgomery County placed third.

The Rockingham County 4-H team won the senior contest, with Frederick County taking runner-up. The Giles County 4-H team came in third.

Approximately 380 junior cattle were exhibited at the Virginia Junior Beef Roundup.

In a steer show sponsored by the Va. Tech Block and Bridle Club, exhibitors showed 120 steers.

Pork Checkoff Makes Marketing Help Available On The Web

DES MOINES, Iowa — The Pork Checkoff now has proceedings from the Estimating Whole Hog Value Symposium available. The proceedings, which feature the latest research on fat-free lean prediction in pork carcasses, can be used by producers to get the most value for their hogs. The information can be found online, or by ordering a CD or printed copy from the National Pork Board.

"Finding the best market for hogs can be a major challenge for pork producers," said Phil Howerton, producer from Chilhowee, Mo. and chair of the Production Systems Committee.The Pork Checkoff's Estimating Whole Hog Value Symposium focused on the valuing of pork carcasses and the factors that can affect a producer's bottom line. From the proceedings, producers can learn more about:

New fat-free lean equations for predicting lean composition of pigs; Consumer value of loin quality differences; Value of each carcass primal cut, including by-products; Procedures and reports on USDA-AMS Market Reporting Systems; Pork sales experiences of producer marketing groups; and Internet pork marketing experiences.

"Even if you weren't able to attend the symposium, these proceedings still can be a valuable tool for marketing your hogs," said Howerton.The Estimating Whole Hog Value Symposium proceedings are available free of charge to pork producers. Ohio Poultry Association Honors Muir

WOOSTER, Ohio — Forest V. Muir, professor emeritus of animal sciences with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC), has received the Golden Egg Award from the Ohio Poultry Association (OPA).

Muir, who also received OPA's Meritorious Service Award in 1994, becomes the only person to have earned two top awards from the group.

The Golden Egg Award honors an individual for outstanding service from within the poultry industry.

Muir was honored for his accomplishments as chair of Ohio State University's Department of Poultry Science from 1990 to 1994 and as associate chair of the Department of Animal Sciences after the merger of the departments of Animal Science, Dairy Science, and Poultry Science. He later served as assistant to the director at OARDC. He retired in 2002.

Ohio's poultry industry has a production value of more than $510 million and is the fastest-growing sector of animal agriculture, according to OPA.

Lancaster Farming OPINION

been a reflection of the people and their times, as well as an agent of change. Fairs are also one of the few places left where a large number of people can view a broad spectrum of agriculture.

Surveys reveal many things concerning the agricultural elements of the fair:

- The agricultural exhibits and activities are important to the fair audience.
- Today's fairgoer, in general, is not interested in the same method of presentation that the farmer was.
- Today's fairgoer wants to be entertained as well as informed.
- Today's fairgoer wants to participate rather than watch.

The key to successfully using agricultural exhibits and activities to promote the importance of the industry lies in the presentation. Properly presenting agriculture at the fair can be mutually beneficial by increasing the attendance of the fair and by increasing the educational opportunities for agriculture.

Fair managers and agriculture leaders must keep the fair's audience expectations in mind and work toward adding agricultural informational entertainment to the traditional exhibits and activities at the fair.

Competitive livestock shows can add emcees to explain what is happening. The audience can be involved by adding people's choice awards or judging sheets to the activity. Live milking, sheep shearing, and spinning and weaving demonstrations are entertaining and informative. Contests give individual entertainment and also entertain those watching. Activities such as guided barn tours, butter making, treasure hunts, pumpkin and scarecrow decorating, and tall-tale telling give people a chance to learn while playing.

Fair managers and agricultural leaders work together to create and present special events, activities, and exhibits at the fair that are fun as well as informative and that can help educate the consumer about Pennsylvania agriculture.

Go To The Fair For Good Food

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — Fair time. Hot days. Lots of food, entertainment, exhibits, animals, races, and carnival rides. And lots of people who return by foot, car, and bus year after year.

IAFE has done surveys. One result was somewhat surprising. The number one reason people go to the fair isn't to see Alabama or other entertainers, isn't to take in the agriculture shows, and isn't to catch the carnival rides and games. It's for the food.

Despite sticky fingers and spills down the front of summer shirts, we want to taste it all — the Greek, Latin American, Pennsylvania Dutch, and just plain junk food. Some of the "latest" food items being sold are "Deep Fried Oreo Cookies" and Rice Pudding In a Cone.

More nutritious entrees are also prevalent at fairs: veggie wraps, shish kebabs, and grilled chicken sandwiches are topping this list. The best sellers are still the cotton candy, the hot sausage sandwich, pizza, and fresh cut french fries.

Nearly all fairs plow any profit they make back into the fair. Board members, working for love of the fair, not money, organize the volunteers and carry out this massive undertaking. That they get great satisfaction from their work is evident by the pride they take in their organization and the fair tradition.

The 118 fairs of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs have a right to their pride — they've earned it with their good organization of this big business that provides us with an entire summer of fun and food.

Last year almost seven million people went to fairs in Pennsylvania. This year, if the weather is good, the number could go even higher with more and more people staying closer to home. If each one of these patrons just spends $15, the amount of money the industry brings to Pennsylvania is staggering.

Have fun this summer eating your way through the fair!

Hay To Promote 114 Fairs

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — The 2003 Pennsylvania Fair Queen, Cassie Hay, will be devoting much of her summer promoting the 114 fairs throughout Pennsylvania.

She will be talking to groups about the importance of agriculture, which is the number one industry in Pennsylvania.

Fairs are the "showplace of agriculture." At fairs, Cassie will be meeting dignitaries, handing out ribbons, announcing events, greeting people, or helping with any number of great events.

Cassie is the 18-year-old daughter of Larry and Gale Hay of Berlin. She lives on High Manor Farm. The farm will achieve Century Farm status in 2004. She is majoring in history and communications at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown.

Cassie received the Student Leadership Award and was named the Elk's Student of the Month as an honor roll student at Berlin Brothersvalley High School. Cassie was elected president of the class of 2002, competed in district forensics and was captain of both varsity soccer team and cheerleading squad. She also performed with "Plus One," chorus, and the band.

Cassie was a runner-up in the 2002 Pennsylvania Outstanding Young Woman Contest. She was Pennsylvania's representative to National 4-H Congress last April. She also went to California as part of a 4-H Exchange Student Program and has showed hogs at the Somerset County Fair for six years. She is employed at Maggie Mae's Neighborhood Cafe.

Throughout the year, the Pennsylvania Fair Queen attends, in addition to fairs, events such as Cornucopia sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Farm Organizations, Tourism Day at the Capitol sponsored by the Pennsylvania Travel Bureau, three days of Ag Progress Days, Pennsylvania Farm-City events, and several days at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in Harrisburg in January.

Pennsylvania State Fair Queen Program is organized by a board of directors from around the state. The board consists of Karen Dodson, Kimberton Fair; Bitsey Kopfinger, Pike County Fair; Frank Long, Sinking Valley Fair; Beverly Gruber, president of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs; and another member yet to be elected from the northwest section of Pennsylvania. To schedule your event including Cassie, contact Sarah Long, scheduling and event coordinator, at RD 1, Box 441, Tyrone, PA 16686.

County Fairs Association Elects Officers

GRATZ (Dauphin Co.) — Beverly Gruber of New Tripoli was elected president of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs during their annual meeting in January.

Gruber, who also serves as secretary/treasurer of the Lehigh County Farm Bureau, has been involved in the fair industry most of her life. She is involved in the Schnecksville Community Fair, the Great Allentown Fair, the Pennsylvania Fair at Philadelphia Park, and the Philadelphia County Fair.

She had served as secretary/treasurer for the county fairs association for eight years and as a board member for 22 years. Gruber is a past director of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions and serves on the Farm Show Commission.

Schwartz Va. Fair Person Of Year

HARRISONBURG, Va. — The Virginia Association of Fairs has named Bill Schwartz Fair Person of the Year.

Schwartz joined the State Fair of Virginia Team in 1972. Through the years, he has had numerous responsibilities and oversight of areas including accounting, cash, ticket/gate controls, investments, corporate stock, by-laws, human resources, security, insurance, safety, contracts, operations, and computer systems. He holds the position of treasurer and vice president of administration.

Schwartz is a certified fair executive (CFE) designated by the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, is a former president of the Virginia Association of Fairs, is treasurer of the Grove Avenue Baptist Church in Richmond, and is an executive board member of the Southern Baptist Conservatives of Virginia.

Schwartz is married to Linda Dunnevant Schwartz and has two married daughters.

Ag Fairs Involved With Professional Groups

GRATZ (Dauphin Co.) — All of the ag fairs in Pennsylvania are members of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) which has been in existence since 1912 and was formed to promote the growth and improvement of agriculture fairs, associations, and societies within the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

That first year there were 13 members and has steadily grown to 118.

Each agriculture fair, association, or society has at its focal point the education and showcase of agriculture, horticulture, etc. More than seven million fairgoers each year can attest to the quality of PSACF has to offer.

At fairs, exhibitors compete for prize money, ribbons, or merely the enjoyment of competition. The following are only examples in which there is competition — livestock, hay and grain, vegetables, fruits and nuts, baked and canned goods, flowers, sewing, art, grange exhibits, contests, and others. This can involve both young and old alike!

Contact each individual fair for the areas of competition they offer.

To be an agriculture fair, sanctioned by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, a fair must comply with the premium guidelines set up by legislative mandate. These guidelines state that each fair must have at least 12 departments and a minimum of five exhibitors in each area. A portion of the premiums paid by each individual fair are reimbursable.

Eighty of the 118 fairs in the state are also members of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions. To be a member of this association, you must operate an annual fair which must have agricultural exhibits or competition as your base and have at least two of the following activities: 1) youth programs, 2) commercial and/or educational exhibits, 3) competition in the fine art or home craft area, and 4) a midway or entertainment area. There are more than 1,400 fairs in North America which are members of this association.

For more information on any of these groups, contact any fair or write to Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs, P.O. Box 546, Gratz, PA 17030. Visit the Website at www.pafairs.org or e-mail PSACF at PSACF @pafairs.org.

Be A Winner

Be a winner at a fair in Pennsylvania this summer. There is a fair in nearly every county in Pennsylvania. In fact, some counties have as many as seven fairs.

Potential exhibitors may enter their creative work in a variety of competitive areas outlined in the 2003 Exhibitors Premium Handbook. Homegrown and homemade products produced by the exhibitors are welcome at the fair.

Categories of entries include home-baked products; canned products; needlecraft; arts, crafts and photography; hay and grain; vegetables; nuts, fruits, berries; Christmas trees; flora exhibits; as well as homemade wine.

The various guides list possible cash prizes and rules for entry, display and removal of exhibits. First, second, and third place cash prizes, as well as ribbons are awarded to each class. A "best of show" ribbon is usually given at most fairs in each general category.

Although rules vary somewhat from fair to fair, entrants are reminded that they may enter only one item in each class. They are encouraged to pre-enter their item to avoid the last minute rush. By submitting entries ahead of time, the processing becomes quicker and easier for both participants and the fair officials. Check the exhibitor guide to see when entries are accepted.

As with most fairs in Pennsylvania, there will be competition for youth, 4-H, and FFA, as well as the open class competition already mentioned. Many fairs also have Websites, so check to see what is happening at your favorite fair and maybe you can win that coveted purple ribbon.

For the exhibit handbook or premium book for a fair near you, contact PSACF Secretary Bruce Koppenhaver at (866) 732-2477 and ask for the brochure, "2003 Pennsylvania Fairs," listing the contact at all Pennsylvania fairs. There is also a Website, www.pafairs.org.

Beamesderfer, Molnar Join Beef Council

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Paul Slayton, Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) executive director, announced that Eve Beamesderfer and Roxanne Molnar will join the organization's team this month.

Beamesderfer, an independent veal grower with her husband in Lebanon County, will coordinate the industry's quality assurance program and also provide membership and administrative support to the American Veal Association (AVA).

A graduate of Northern Lebanon High School, Beamesderfer was an FFA officer, member of the National Honor Society and class treasurer. She attended Word of Life Bible Institute and is active in the Ono United Methodist Church.

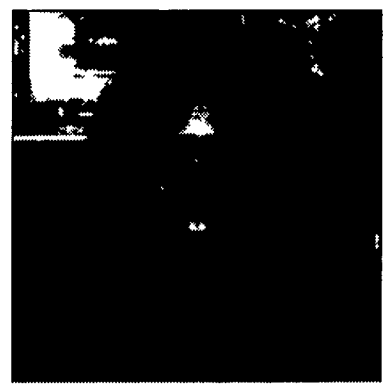
"As a veal grower, I am familiar with the issues facing the industry and am passionate about helping other growers succeed," said Beamesderfer.

Molnar will assume PBC industry relations responsibilities and coordination of the veal issues management contract. A 1999 Penn State food science graduate, Molnar previously was quality assurance and hazard analysis critical control point (HACCP) supervisor at Tyson Foods, Inc., New Holland. She also was employed by Empire Kosher Poultry, Inc. as both chicken flock and quality assurance supervisor.

Roxanne Molnar will assume PBC industry relations responsibilities and coordination of the veal issues management contract.

While at Penn State, Molnar received the prestigious Bryce Jordan Leadership Award for service to the College of Agricultural Sciences through extracurricular clubs and activities. She also served as the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Queen and coordinated the association's youth show and activities at the Beef Expo.

Active in the state agricultural community, Molnar serves on the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) swine show committee and is vice president of both the Lancaster County Poultry Association and Penn State Ag Advocate Alumni Association. Molnar and her husband reside in Lebanon.



Eve Beamesderfer will coordinate the industry's quality assurance program and also provide membership and administrative support to the American Veal Association (AVA).

agricultural education are high on the list of priorities for the new administration.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will work to continue the successful programs of the past and work hard to develop new programs to help agriculture grow and prosper.

Since January, we have revised the crop insurance program, secured $40 million for farmland preservation, funded the Ag and Rural Youth Program, approved Next Generation Farmer Loans, awarded our first Small Business First Loan to production agriculture, and hosted a tour for township supervisors to increase understanding of animal agriculture operations.

This is just the beginning for Pennsylvania agriculture — we are on the move.

Pennsylvania agriculture has a bright future and I am confident that, by working together, we can accomplish even more.

Pork Checkoff Presents P.O.R.K. Academy

The Pork Checkoff is presenting the Producers Opportunity for Revenue and Knowledge (P.O.R.K.) Academy on Wednesday, June 4 at the Marriott in downtown Des Moines, Iowa. This Checkoff-funded event is conducted annually on the eve of World Pork Expo. Like in 2002, the Pork Checkoff is expected to be the largest exhibitor at World Pork Expo, which is scheduled for June 5-7 in Des Moines.

"Pork producers who attend P.O.R.K. Academy can learn about many different areas," said Dennis Michael, chairman of the Pork Checkoff's Education Committee and a pork producer from Yankton, S.D.

"As a pork producer, access to accurate and timely information is vital to my operation and the Pork Checkoff is helping provide that through educational events like P.O.R.K. Academy."

P.O.R.K. Academy will include sessions on air quality, antimicrobial uses and alternatives, closed herds, market outlook, value-added pork production, maximizing sow production, Comprehensive Nutrient Management Plans (CNMPs), herd health, Swine Welfare Assurance ProgramSM (SWAPSM), environmental regulations/standards, and international marketing needs/pork quality.

A CD-ROM of the P.O.R.K. Academy proceedings will be available for purchase for $15 each. Following the P.O.R.K. Academy, audio tapes will be available for all sessions at $10 per session or $80 for a complete set. Videos will be available for select sessions only.

For more information, see the Checkoff-funded Internet site www.porkboard.org; write to P.O.R.K. Academy, P.O. Box 9114, Des Moines, IA 50306; or call (800) 456-7675.

24 Watershed Projects Completed

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Acting Secretary Kathleen A. McGinty recently announced 24 watershed restoration projects in southcentral Pennsylvania have been completed through the Growing Greener program.

"Heading into its fifth year, Growing Greener continues to be the driving force behind watershed efforts throughout Pennsylvania," McGinty said. "With every completed project we draw closer to improved water quality, renewed life in our streams and a greater sense of community throughout every watershed in the Commonwealth."

So far, 286 projects have been completed statewide totaling nearly $23 million in Growing Greener funding awarded. In the southcentral region alone 51 projects have been completed spending more than $1.7 million.

Funding for the Growing Greener program was doubled and extended through 2012. DEP's portion of Growing Greener funding was increased to $547.7 million from $241.5 million in the original program. It is now funded primarily through a $4-per-ton tipping fee on solid waste disposed in Pennsylvania's municipal waste landfills.

In four years, Growing Greener has supplied $12.7 million in grant money for 194 projects in the 15 counties of southcentral Pennsylvania. The grants have been used to create or restore wetlands, restore stream buffer zones, eliminate causes of nonpoint source pollution, plug oil and gas wells, reclaim abandoned mine lands, and restore aquatic life to streams that were lifeless due to acid mine drainage.

For more information on the Growing Greener program, visit the Pennsylvania homepage at www.state.pa.us. PA Keyword: "Growing Greener."

High Pressure Produce Sprayers

Trailer or 3 Pt. Hitch Models

Zimmerman's manufactures several different model sprayers designed for produce spraying. They are built for the small farmer that cannot justify a large expensive sprayer. Trailer models are available with a 200 or 300 gallon tank and 3pt hitch models with a 110, 150, 200 or 300 gallon tank. The 25' single sided boom has 7' plus clearance and requires a minimal amount of drive rows because of the wide span. It also has a hydraulic cylinder that allows the operator to level the boom from the tractor seat. A Hypro high pressure diaphragm provides up to 290 p.s.i. and non-drip nozzle bodies keep chemical loss minimal. Stop or call Zimmerman's today to see how we can help you with your spraying needs and improve your profit margin.

PLNA Receives Clarification On Loan Eligibility

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Landscape and Nursery Association President Gregg Robertson and Director of Government Relations Michele Corbin Rudloff recently met with the Department of Community and Economic Development Deputy Secretary to seek clarification on loan eligibility for the Small Business First Loan Program (SBF) and the Machinery and Equipment Loan Fund (MELF).

As previously reported, the SBF and MELF programs were recently opened to include production agriculture operations. PLNA's retail center and landscape contracting members are not eligible for the SBF or MELF programs, however, if they are located in distressed areas they would qualify for the Community and Economic Development Loan Fund (CED).

SBF offers up to $200,000 for land, building, machinery, equipment, and working capital. If filed within 9 months of a natural disaster, such as the 2002 drought, the interest rate is 2 percent. MELF offers up to $500,000 for machinery and equipment. The interest rate varies from 3-5 percent. CED offers funding for retail and commercial operations in distressed areas for up to $200,000 or 50 percent of the cost of the program. The interest rate for CED is 2 percent.

For all of the programs, applicants must contact their local economic development office to begin the loan process. A list of these offices is available at www.plna.com under Government Relations Compliance Center or by calling the PLNA office at (800) 898-3411.

NASS
Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

2003 CROP PLANTINGS AND HOGS

Last year the drought affected much of the state. Now, many are talking about spring rains, but since April 1, precipitation is generally a bit below 30-year averages except for the western third of Pennsylvania and the south central area. Many field crops and fruit are rated in good condition as of May 19.

Although weather always impacts yields, we need to have a good measure of field crop acreage as a first step to understand potential crop production for 2003. For this purpose, the annual June Agricultural Survey contacts a preselected group of farmers to represent all growers in the state and nation. It is not a census of all growers, only a scientific sample.

In Pennsylvania, the June Ag Survey collects acreage information about hay, small grains, corn, sorghum, soybeans, potatoes, sunflowers, canola, and tobacco. The survey also measures grains in storage, livestock, farm numbers, and land values.

The quarterly Hog Survey is conducted at the same time and coordinated to reduce additional contacts for hog owners. Both surveys are under way from late May through mid-June.

The survey includes different phases to keeps costs low and quality high. Our interviewers will visit nearly 150 land segments across the state that are about one square mile each. They will contact all operators within the segment to draw operation and field boundaries on aerial photographs to account for all land use within the selected area.

Knowing that no list is complete, these aerial photos allow us to estimate crop acreages and how many farms are not on our list of farmers. If you are visited by our staff with these photos, your cooperation is very important because these 150 square miles represent all 45,000 square miles in Pennsylvania.

In addition, we've sampled about 1,300 crop farmers and about 300 hog owners from our list of known agricultural operators. Letters will be sent to them explaining the upcoming survey. They will be contacted from late May to mid-June for their help in answering acreage and livestock questions that don't require using the more complex aerial photos.

These USDA surveys are all done at the same time nationwide. So it is important that Pennsylvania producers be properly represented among the other states. Crop statistics provide producers with vital information for cash crop farmers and current and potential feed supplies for milk and livestock producers. Hog growers can review national trends to help with production decisions.

As with all our surveys, by federal law, your name, address, and data about your operation are completely confidential. Survey results are published as totals so that no individual data can be discovered or calculated. The same law also protects your data from requests under the Freedom of Information Act.

By law, no one can gain early access to the results of any survey. The reports are available to everyone at www.usda.gov/nass/. Milk Production Down Again

Around the 17th of each month we publish the Milk Production Report with cow numbers, milk per cow, and total milk production for the previous month for each of the 20 major states. Quarterly, the report includes all 50 states.

Thanks to all dairy folks that help with this monthly survey.

The February issue contains an annual summary of milk statistics, including any revisions to the monthly or quarterly numbers for the previous year.

The February 2003 issue revealed that after several years of increases, Pennsylvania milk production has declined over the past two years from 11.16 million pounds in 2000 to 10.85 in 2001 and 10.78 million pounds in 2003. 2003 production is the lowest since the 10.66 million pounds produced in 1997.

Production declines are due to a smaller Pennsylvania herd. Milk per cow has increased by 1.9 percent since 2000, while the herd size declined from 617,000 to 585,000 cows. Over the same period, New York dairies have also reduced herd size to 678,000 but milk per cow increased by 3.7 percent.

In 2002, Pennsylvania herds averaged 18,419 pounds per cow compared to 18,858 for the 20 major states, 18,571 nationwide, and 18,019 pounds per cow in New York.

There are many other reports with dairy statistics, including annual milk supply and utilization, monthly average milk prices received by farmers, U.S. dairy herd structure, monthly production of dairy products (butter, cheese, and ice cream), and weekly U.S. prices for cheddar cheese, butter, nonfat dry milk, and dry whey prices and volume. The reports can be found at www.usda.gov/nass/ by using the "Search" button and looking for "Milk" and "Dairy" in the commodity listing.

Floriculture Report Published April 24

A big "thank you" is due to the Pennsylvania producers that helped in this annual effort. The report can be used by growers to evaluate crops raised and to compare average prices in Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Pennsylvania is the seventh largest floriculture state with more than $180 million in sales in 2002. This only measures one part of the greenhouse and nursery industry, which is the fourth largest sector of Pennsylvania agriculture, after milk, cattle, and mushrooms (based on 2001 cash receipts).

The Nursery Crops Report is published every other year. The most recent report is for the 2000 production. The reports can be found at www.usda.gov/nass/ by using the "search" button and looking for "floriculture crops" or "nursery" in the commodity listing.

Wolff Appointed To Ag Trade Committee

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff has been appointed to serve on the Agricultural Technical Advisory Committee (ATAC) for Trade in Animals and Animal Products by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann Veneman and U.S. Trade Representative Robert B. Zoellick.

As a member of the ATAC for Trade in Animals and Animal Products, Wolff will work with the federal government to provide insight about agricultural trade issues.

In addition, the committee will consult with, advise, and make recommendations to the U.S. secretary of agriculture and the U.S. trade representative.

"Washington could have picked no better representative of the agriculture industry than Dennis C Wolff," Rendell said. "His many interests and responsibilities have prepared him well for the Advisory Committee. I am confident that his work will increase the economic opportunities for farmers and help Pennsylvania agriculture grow and prosper."

Wolff said that achieving fair trade practices and opening and expanding markets around the world is crucial to the success of American agriculture.

"With more than one billion dollars in exports from the agriculture sector, Pennsylvania clearly has an interest in the international trade climate," Wolff said. "I look forward to continuing to work to ensure that agriculture thrives not only in Pennsylvania, but in the United States as well."

Wolff is involved in many areas of agriculture and is experienced in international agriculture. As owner of Pen-Col Farms in Columbia County, a 600-acre, 500-head Holstein dairy cattle operation, Wolff has specialized in purebred Holstein genetics.

Steers Set Record At $88.25

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Slaughter steer prices at the county auctions seemed well on their way this week to break the record Choice steer weekly average price of $83.15 (per hundredweight) set in December 1990.

Monday, Dave Wert, market reporter with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), covered the fed cattle sale at the Vintage Sales Stables and reported prices $.75-1.00 higher compared to last Thursdays auction at New Holland. High Choice and Prime steers sold $83.75-87.50, with a few to $88.25, average price $85.99; and Choice 2-3, $80.00-84.75, average price $82.65.

Tuesday, the main cattle sale at Vintage in the absence of Taylor Cox, was reported by Jim Anderson, who retired from the USDA Market News Service after 35 year of covering the county livestock auctions. Anderson was to quote the highest prices he ever witnessed on High Choice and Prime cattle. Steer prices were in the same range as those quoted Monday.

One Angus cow from a remote area in northern Alberta, Canada, halted the upward advance to the highest cattle prices in the history of the Pennsylvania cattle industry.

Late Tuesday, via e-mails and news reports, we learned that a cow slaughtered Jan. 31 at a Canadian packing plant had bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) — referred to as mad cow disease. Tests were done and redone in England. Since so much time has elapsed between the slaughter and the test results, it was enough to send shock waves through the cattle industry. How many more BSE cattle are out there? (Details of the BSE situation are printed in an article on page 1 this week.)

Cattle futures dropped the daily limit of 150 points Wednesday, direct feedlot trading was too little to trend, and cattle prices were reported $1.00-2.00 lower at Sioux Falls, S. D., the terminal market that eastern cattle feeders follow for price trends.

After a devastating year in 2002, cattle feeders were (and still are) reveling in the highest fed cattle prices in 10 years. Also this terrific market was happening at a time when the most farmer/feeders could benefit. Those who feed cattle over the winter months, usually market them from April to June.

The euphoria of the advancing cattle prices here in the county Monday and Tuesday dissipated Thursday as demand faltered and became very selective. Even though prices were fully $1.00 lower, with some High Choice and Prime selling fully $2.00 lower, it still was a good market.

Taylor Cox, the current USDA market reporter, who had returned from the market news conference in Oklahoma City conducted earlier in the week, said bidding was sporadic — at times it was relatively good for the high quality stock only to falter when the lower grade cattle came in the ring.

In regards to the BSE effects on the U.S. cattle and beef trade, Cox said that we will have to wait and see what develops. He said there are differences of opinion concerning the situation. Some local producers feel it will boost local demand as packers will be forced to buy U.S. cattle to keep their chains full, while others feel consumer confidence in the safety of the beef supply could be affected.

Even though the CME futures trade and the cattle markets faltered after the BSE announcement, prices in the wholesale beef trade continued to move higher. Demand for Memorial Day cookouts has been excellent. This holiday at the beginning of the grilling season is considered the largest beef eating time of the year.

In checking the supermarket beef prices Thursday, New York strip steaks ready for the grill were priced at $8.99 per pound. Perhaps there will be more hamburgers than steaks on the grills. There is a wide choice on ground product at various prices based on the percentage of fat. Carcass cutout values based on the prices of boxed beef cuts are at record levels. Wednesday, the Choice lightweight carcass cutout value advanced 76 cents to $143.70 per hundredweight and the heavyweight Choice value advanced $1.29 to $143.85. Feedlot prices in very limited sales were mostly at $80.00 live and ranged $125.00-129.00, mostly $127.00-128.00 on a dressed basis.

the week on relatively light tests. Slaughter heifer runs were rather light, therefore a weekly trend was not established. All classes of slaughter cows sold fully 2.00-4.00 higher for the week. There are a few packers in the state that rely on Canadian imports of cows to fill their kills, thus their demand became greater at the local markets late in the week as their supply chains had been cut off. Slaughter bulls sold steady to 4.00 higher for the week. The reported supply this week included 1030 head of steers, 129 heifers, 914 cows, 198 bulls, with the balance made up of 227 head of feeder cattle.

Calves: Compared to last week, veal calves sold near steady. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply lower for most of the week, with the only ray of sunshine coming on Tuesday as prices were able to close up to 10.00 higher. There are several local producers that wish they were able to keep their calves in their barns for just a few more weeks, having just shipped them to the harvest floor. The reasoning, with the Canadian border closed the finished calf demand should increase sharply; especially after being fairly stagnant the last couple of months. Northeast veal carcasses remained steady for the week from 183.00-188.00 on a hot basis. Contract calves harvested this week from mostly 185.00-190.00. The demand for Holstein heifers in the county sky rocketed on Tuesday as prices were as high as 480.00, however every rocket has to land as prices were sharply lower by weeks end barely breaking the 400.00 barrier. This week in the county the PA Department of Agriculture graded 789 head of heifers and bulls at the two graded sales.

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Cattle Weekly

Springfield, Ill.
May 16, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Cattle Summary — Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio: Compared to last week, feeder steers were 2.00-3.00 higher and heifers were unevenly steady. The recent spring rains have produced excellent pastures for grazing which has spurred on good demand for light weight calves.

The slaughter cattle market was sharply higher with active trading but there was little spillover into the feeder cattle market. Many area producers are still concentrating on planting their crops and did not actively market their feeders this week. Reported sales consisted of about 34% beef steers, 66% heifers and 0% Holstein steers. Approximately 87% of the cattle marketed this week weighed over 600 lbs. Confirmed sales 800 this week, 1475 last week and 800 last year.

FEEDER STEERS: Medium and Large 1-2: 725-850 lbs 80.00-85.50. Holstein steers: Medium and Large 3: no test.

BMR Sorghum Sudans & More

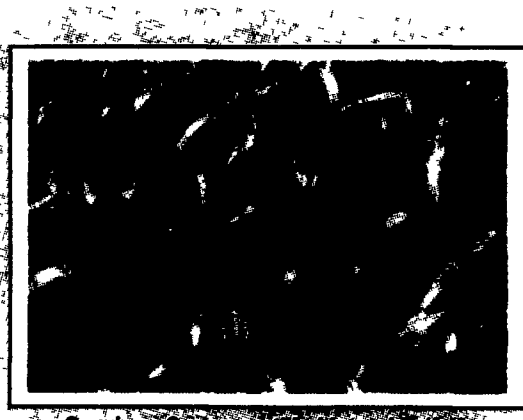
Drought Tolerance & Super Quality Combined

Hybrid Pearl Millet

Mega-Mil - Prussic acid free. Safe for horses. Better than sorghum sudans on light soils and tolerates lower pH soils. Excellent forage quality similar to our BMR sorghum sudans.

Forage Sorghum

Millennim BMR - Corn silage alternative. Requires 2/3 the water of corn. Virtually equal to average corn silage in energy, but has higher sugar and protein. Can be planted with corn.



Sorghum Sudan no-tilled into old alfalfa

BMR Sorghum Sudans

Our BMR varieties contain 35-40% less lignin than conventional varieties, resulting in super digestibility and performance. Ready to cut in about 40 days. Similar energy to corn silage, but twice the protein.

- Century BMR - Time tested product. Great for double crop programs. Heads in 80-85 days.
- Summer Queen BMR - Limited supply. For full season production without heads.
- Summer King BMR - New lower cost product. Heads in about 60-65 days.

Beef Grilling Guidelines

1. Prepare charcoal. When coals are medium, ash-covered (about 30 minutes), spread in single layer and check cooking temperature Position cooking grid. *(To check temperature, cautiously hold palm of hand above coals at cooking height. Count number of seconds before heat forces you to pull it away: 4 seconds for medium)
2. Season beef with herbs or spices as desired. Place on grid over coals
3. Grill according to chart, turning occasionally. After cooking, season beef with salt, if desired.

Because gas and electric grill brands vary greatly, consult your owner's manual for grilling guidelines

Expert Tips

- Marinades add flavor to steaks and also help tenderize Marinate tender steaks in A 1 Steakhouse Marinades at least 30 minutes — longer for richer flavor Marinate less tender steaks (see chart below) 6 hours up to 24 hours Choose from Classic, Garlic & Herb, Mesquite or new Chicago Steakhouse for a different taste each time you marinate
- Always marinate in the refrigerator, not at room temperature Never save and reuse a marinade that has been in contact with raw beef
- To determine doneness, use an instant-read thermometer inserted horizontally into the center of the steak Cook steaks to at least 145°F (medium rare) Visually determine doneness by cutting a small slit near the center of a boneless steak (or near the bone of a bone-in steak) and check the color (very pink for medium rare)
- Turn steaks with tongs. A fork can pierce, causing loss of flavorful juices
- Brush steaks with additional marinade during grilling to add an extra flavor boost.

On Being a Farm Wife
(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Almost hard to imagine.

Just a year ago, dry ground and dusty roads in mid-May foreshadowed the summer's devastating drought. A farmer friend mentioned that a few days ago, as the latest surge of rainfall was pounding the East coast.

Even early this week, many farmers have corn planted, but no forage chopped for livestock. Others are working on forage, but seed still waits in the bags. Early Monday morning brought a smidgeon of frost to our meadow. And the bottoms of countless barns, bins, and bunker silos across the region are bare as the proverbial baby's bottom.

Those of us whose livelihoods live and die by Mother Nature have learned to, if not like, at least live with these dramatic swings that the seasons increasingly seem to bring. So, a recent leaden-gray evening, with steady, gentle rain falling from clouds almost skimming the treetops, was not enough to discourage Derra Dog from begging to go on our evening walk. Completing our walking trio was Midnight, former stray cat turned porch pet, whose mission in life is to make sure I never lack a furry friend underfoot to fall over.

Enroute, we take a quick detour around the springhouse perennial flower bed, to check what new surprise might have popped up in the last soggy day or two. Droplets of moisture cling to every plant surface, lending the effect of handfuls of dewy diamonds tossed at random across the greenery.

An early-blooming iris at a sheltered corner sports large, golden yellow blooms. Its wind-battered stems under moisture-heavy blooms lean down into neighboring clumps of foliage. Cherry red dianthus blooms look almost gaudy in the somber landscape. Nearby, slender stems peeking out from under a rosebush dangle small, bright blue, bell-shaped blooms. They're new; wonder where they came from?

Prolonged rain has left the meadow sod spongy, and each step makes a squishy sound. Rain drops ooze down sword-shaped cattail leaves and cluster in shiny tiny globes on each waterlily pad dotting the pond. The steady spattering of raindrops textures the surface of the pond, and circles radiate where an occasional fish rises to check for edibles.

Sight of the cat padding along sends resident red-winged male blackbird into a fit of screeching and scolding. This family's nest is usually tucked into the tangled mass of a multiflora rose bush hanging over the far side of the pond bank. Father Bird vigilantly patrols the territory with a sharp voice and warning aerial dips increasingly low overhead, spiffy neon-red-orange epaulets flashing on his dark wings.

Even louder is the honking raised by the dozen-plus adult "wild" geese scattered around the ponds. Three pairs keep watch over families of fuzzy goslings, herding them to the far side of the water when Derra splashes in for her evening swim. The geese do not know they have absolutely nothing to fear from our gentle, aging Lab, unless, of course, they are hoarding a stash of cookies.

One pair, however, reroutes our way, seven fluffy goslings paddling furiously between them. Their flotilla forms a V-shaped wake in the pond's rain-spattered surface as they glide in our direction, anticipating a handout of floating pelleted fish food. Alas, we have come empty handed, and mother goose honks at us indignantly.

Wildflowers bloom along the edges of the little stream beside the ponds, yellows and purples nodding above the gurgling water. Bits of bright white scattered along the streams soggy edges pose a puzzle, until I realize they are root leftovers from plants yanked out by the feeding geese. A heavy spearmint fragrance wafts up from the stream bank, where patches of the aromatic herbal tea plant grow wild. Its wonderful smell beckons me to snap off some tender tops, for brewing a hot cup of May tonic on this damp, chilly night.

One dripping dog, one drowned-looking cat, and one muddy-footed farm wife make yet another detour through the gardens, snapping off a fistful of fat asparagus stalks and rescuing the stem of water-sodden yellow iris blooms.

When it's too soggy outside to enjoy spring, we'll bring its treasures inside to savor.

Well Preserved

Planning Ahead For Home Canning

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

As gardens are being planted with peas, green beans, corn, and other favorites, you begin to visualize a bountiful harvest, some of which may be preserved.

Rhubarb is being picked for traditional sauces and desserts. Strawberries will soon be available for sweet preserves. All are signs that it's time to plan ahead for home canning this summer.

Start by checking your equipment and supplies. Proper equipment in good condition is required for safe, high quality home canned food.

A pressure canner is a must for canning low-acid foods. This includes all vegetables except acidified tomatoes. Meats, fish, and poultry must also be processed in a pressure canner. Dial gauges should be tested for accuracy before each canning season. You can have a dial gauge tested free at your local cooperative extension office.

In Lancaster County there will be someone available each Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. to test dial gauges. In other counties, call your extension office to set up a time to have the dial gauge tested. You only need to bring the canner lid to have it tested. Pressure canners with weighted gauges do not need testing. Also check your pressure canner to see if the rubber gasket is flexible and soft, not brittle, sticky or cracked. If you need to replace the rubber gasket, make sure you know the brand and model number of your canner when you go to the store to purchase one.

There are many styles of gaskets available, and you will not be able to judge the thickness and size of the rubber gasket by sight. Check the pliability of the washer on the air vent and the pressure release plug. Hold the lid to the light to make sure any small pipes or vent ports with openings are clean and open all the way through. Small vents can be cleaned with a small brush or a pipe cleaner.

A boiling water canner is needed for canning other foods such as fruits, pickles, acidified tomatoes, jellies and jars. The canner should be deep enough to allow at least one to two inches of water to boil over the tops of the jars. Some of the new boiling water canners are designed for processing jams and jellies and are only deep enough for pint jars. If you plan to can in quart jars, look for a taller canner and measure the height of the canner so that there is space for a rack, the jars, at least one inch of water above the jars, and room for the water to boil rapidly without boiling over.

Both types of canners should have a rack in the bottom to keep jars off the bottom of the canner. It may be a flat rack or a lift out type rack. Inventory your jars and decide if you need to buy new jars this year. Inspect those you have for nicks, cracks, or chipsespecially around the top sealing edge. Nicks can prevent lids from sealing.

Very old jars can weaken with age and repeated use and may break under pressure and heat. New jars are a better investment over time than buying used jars at yard sales or flea markets.

Mason-type jars specifically designed for home canning are best. Commercial jars such as mayonnaise jars may be used in boiling water processing, but they may not always seal and are more likely to break.

Avoid using commercial jars in a pressure canner because the higher temperatures and pressure increase the risk of breaking. Although canning jars come in a variety of sizes from half-pint to half-gallon jars, processing times have not been developed for many foods in half-pint, 12-ounce, or 24 ounce jars. If a recipe does not specify a processing time for one of these jars, process according to the time given for the next larger jar. Half-gallon canning jars are only suitable for very acid juices such as apple juice and grape juice. Jars come in both the regular and wide-mouth styles.

Jars that use two-piece self-sealing metal lids are the recommended container in USDA guidelines. Two piece lids consist of a flat metal disc which has a sealing compound around the outer edge and a separate metal screw band. Always use new flat lids. Used lids should be thrown away. The screw bands are reusable if they are not bent, dented or rusted. Do not reuse lids from commercially canned foods for home canning. Zinc lids and bail-type jars are no longer recommended for home canning; they are more suitable for dry food storage and decorative purposes.

Some other items are helpful for home canning. A jar lifter is essential for easy removal of hot jars from the canner. A jar filler or funnel helps in packing small food items and jams into canning jars. A plastic bubble freer removes air bubbles from jars. Metal knives or objects should not be used as a bubble freer because they can scratch the glass making the jar more susceptible to breakage.

A lid wand has a magnet on the end that helps remove lids from the hot water. A timer or clock is needed to determine the end of the processing time. Many other home canning accessories such as corn cutters, apple slicers, cherry pitters, decorative labels, and special canning spoons are available. Some of these items may simplify the procedures but are not essential.

Finally, make sure that you have up-to-date canning instructions. The most recently revised edition of the USDA canning guides is dated 1994. Canning books published prior to 1994 will not have safe processing times and/or methods. The National Center for Home Food Preservation has a good web site at http://www.uga.edu/nchfp. Watch this column for new publications and web sites for the latest canning information.

Planning ahead can save you time, money, and frustration with home canning. Make it a happy, successful canning season by getting prepared before your harvest is ready.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 10 a.m.-1 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Rm.1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

York Announces Dairy Promotion Candidates

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

AIRVILLE (York Co.) — State dairy princess Raechel Kilgore recently hosted a planning tea for what promises to be a bittersweet event, her final appearance as York County's first lady of the dairy industry. While Raechel's state reign continues through September, she is helping to pave the way for her successor in the county with the upcoming dairy princess coronation.

Heather Baumgardner credits her experience as a dairy ambassador for helping to prepare her for greater responsibilities in dairy promotion, as York County's next princess. Raechel will crown Heather as her successor during the annual county dairy promotion pageant, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Saturday, May 24, at the 4-H Center.

The daughter of Dan and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg, Heather is 19 and a home-study freshman student in elementary education at Liberty University. Her enjoyment in working with early age school groups in the promotion program encouraged Heather to pursue elementary education studies. In addition to her college classes, Heather continues to work with the Baumgardner's 60-head milking herd and related farm responsibilities. She volunteers with the release-time-program students in the Northern School District's elementary schools and is studying kickboxing as a fun pursuit.

Candidates for York County dairy ambassador, who play a significant role in assisting the princess with promotion events, are Amanda Hoover and Trisha Knight.

Amanda Hoover, 15, is the daughter of Paul and Rose Hoover, Windsor, and a freshman at Eastern York High School. She is a veteran dairy promoter, having started with the program five years ago as a dairy miss, and enjoys helping with the school events. Amanda is active in both FFA and 4-H, exhibits dairy goats, judges dairy and livestock, and participates in public speaking activities. She is president of the Bees and Berries 4-H club and a member of the swine club.

Trisha Knight, 14, is the daughter of Paul and Jean Knight, Airville, and a freshman at Kennard Dale High School, where she plays volleyball and basketball. She is a member of the dairy bowl team, 4-H dairy showing, dairy judging, and vet clubs.

Candidates for York County dairy maid are Jelee Anstine, Amy Baumgardner, Stevie Greek, and Carlyn Crowl.

Jelee Anstine, 11, is the daughter of Lynn and Charles Anstine, York. She is a sixth-grade student at Central Middle School and president of her Girl Scout troop. Jelee joined the dairy promotion team several years ago as a little miss and recently helped prepare and sell milkshakes at a community benefit fundraiser at the Airville Fire Company.

Amy Baumgardner, 12, is the daughter of Dan and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg. A home-schooled sixth-grade student, Amy helps with milking and related chores for the family's 60-head dairy herd. She owns three 4-H dairy animals and exhibits them as a member of the Central York dairy club. Amy has been taking part in promotion events for five years, and especially enjoys parades and senior citizen center dairy bingo.

Carlyn Crowl, 11, is the daughter of Gary and Melanie Crowl, Delta. She is a sixth-grade student at Clearview Elementary and a jazz dance student at B-Dazzled studio. Carlyn exhibits three Milking Shorthorns as a member of the Milk and Money dairy club and judges with the 4-H junior dairy judging team. Beginning her third year of promotion activities, Carlyn participates in several area parades and taken dairy promotions to her Clearview School classes.

Stevie Greek, 12, is the daughter of Leonard and Bonnie Jo Greek, Delta. She is a sixth-grade student at Clearview Elementary, in the school's gifted-individual program, and participates in basketball, softball, seminar, and chorus. Stevie had five dairy animals she shows as a member of the Milk and Money 4-H club and is looking forward to her first year assisting on the county's dairy promotion events team.

The three candidates for dairy miss are Katie Baumgardner, Frankie Greek, and Amber Thoman. Rebekah Baumgardner and Kelsey Knight are little dairy miss candidates.

Katie Baumgardner, 8, is the daughter of Dan and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg. She is a third-grade level, home-schooled student and helps with calf feeding and milking the family's 60 cows. Katie shows her Holstein calf, Misty, as a member of the Central York dairy club and began helping with promotion as a little dairy miss. She likes to hand out dairy stickers and cow erasers at area fairs.

Frankie Greek, 10, is the daughter of Bonnie Jo and Leonard Greek, Delta. Fifth-grade classes at Clearview Elementary and practicing for a June recital with her dance classes keep Frankie busy. She is also a member of the Airville 4-H Milk and Money dairy club and shows her heifer at area fairs. Frankie participated in the promotion program a few years ago as a little dairy miss.

Amber Thoman, 9, is the daughter of Gail and Gary Thoman, Dallastown. She is a third-grader at Loganville-Springfield Elementary and plays soccer with the Jacobus-Loganville-Springfield community recreation. Amber shows two heifers with the Southwest 4-H dairy club and is learning dairy judging. A participant in the county's dairy promotion group since beginning as a little miss, Amber's favorite events are the area parades.

Rebekah Baumgardner, 5, is the daughter of Dan and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg. Rebekah is at the kindergarten level in the family's home-schooling studies and helps move the cows during milking chores. She returns to the dairy promotion team as a little miss.

Kelsey Knight, 6, is the daughter of Lisa and James Knight, Airville. Kelsey is finishing kindergarten at the Clearview Elementary School and likes to help with feeding the cows and calves at the family's dairy farm. This will be Kelsey's first year helping with promotion as a little dairy miss.

For more information on the York County dairy princess coronation or promotion activities, contact Lori Baumgardner at (717) 432-3169 or Heather Crowl at (717) 862-3955.

Workshop Focuses On Light, Lean, Easy

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Consumers searching for lean meat cuts may be disappointed in the flavor if not properly cooked.

"Low-fat meats should not be overcooked or they will be dry and tasteless," said Fay Strickler, family and consumer science agent for Berks County. Thermometers, she stressed, are required to keep from overcooking and undercooking meats.

"People often think they know when food is done by looking at it, but that can be misleading. Meat color — pink or brown — can fool you," Strickler said.

Insert meat thermometer in the thickest part of the muscle, not against the bone. Read instructions carefully for preparing meats.

For example, ham is precooked and needs only to reach an internal temperature of 140 degrees. Remove the meat from the oven when it reaches an internal temperature of five degrees less than the prescribed temperature. Allow the ham to set 30 minutes, and the temperature will rise an additional five degrees.

When selecting lean beef or pork cuts, look for cuts that have the word "loin" in the name, such as tenderloin, sirloin, and loin chop. The food pyramid recommends two to three servings daily of two- to three-ounces of meat. A 3-ounce serving is meat about the size of a deck of cards or the size of your palm.

Variety and moderation are the key, Strickler said, when attempting to lose weight by following a low-fat diet.

Although many people overeat the recommended amount of meats, Strickler said that people who eliminate meats completely from their diets are often pale and do not have a good skin color.

Many consumers believe that red meats are higher in fat than white meats. But this isn't always true. Chicken thighs contain a higher amount of fat than many beef cuts.

Contrary to some people's misconceptions, lowfat cooking is no more costly or time consuming than using higher fat meats.

"Choose the economical, less tender beef cuts for slow cooking. These include cuts from the chuck and round to make pot roasts and pieces of beef for stews and soups. The long, slow cooking process ensures fork-tender, moist, and flavorful beef," Strickler said.

Meats are cooked by two different methods: moist and dry heat.

"Lean meats must be cooked with a moist method to keep them from tasting too dry," Strickler said.

"Learn basic cooking methods and adapt them to your recipes," Strickler said.

Moist heat methods include the following:

• Braising — Slowly brown meat or poultry on all sides using small amount of oil, if necessary, in a heavy pan.

Pour off drippings. Season with salt, herbs or spices as desired. Add a small amount of liquid (as little as two tablespoons may be used; however ¼-½ cup is recommended, such as water, juice, wine, broth, or stock.

Cover tightly to provide a moist atmosphere for cooking. Simmer on low heat on top of range or in oven until fork tender.

Vegetables should be added toward the end of cooking to prevent overcooking.

The cooking liquid may be reduced or thickened after removing fat to make a sauce.

• Stewing — Coat meat or poultry lightly with seasoned flour, if desired.

Slowly brown on all sides using a small amount of oil, if necessary, in heavy pan.

Pour off drippings.

Cover meat or poultry with liquid such as water, juice, wine, broth or stock.

Season, as desired. Cover tightly and simmer on top of the range until fork tender.

Vegetables should be added toward the end of cooking time to prevent overcooking.

Reduce or thicken cooking liquid after removing fat, if desired.

• Poaching — Season meat, poultry or fish, as desired. For roasts, tie with heavy string at 2-inch intervals, if needed. Brown on all sides in nonstick pan. Pour off excess drippings.

Cover meat, poultry, or fish with liquid. Season with additional ingredients, if desired. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer until done.

• Steaming — Place fish on a steamer pan or perforated tray. Set into pan, above simmering liquid.

Cover pan, and continue steaming at low heat until fish flakes.

Strickler and her staff cooked a variety of meats for taste testing during a recent workshop on light, lean, and easy cooking. Here is one of the recipes.

LAZY DAY STEW

2 pounds lean beef cubes
1½ cups green beans
2 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
2 cups carrots, sliced
2 cups potatoes, sliced
2 medium onions, diced
1 cup celery
1 can tomato soup
1 tablespoon brown sugar

Place beef cubes (do not brown) in single layer in 2½-quart casserole. Add veggies and sprinkle with tapioca and salt over top. Pour tomato soup and water over seasoning. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cover tightly. Bake at 325 degrees for three hours. Do not peek. Serves 4-6.

Fay Strickler, family living and consumer science agent for Berks County Extension, recommends using rubs and marinades to enhance the flavors of low-fat meats.

Set Nutrition Record Straight

DENVER, Colo. — Through their beef checkoff, America's beef producers recently launched a first-of-its-kind advertising campaign that compares the nutritional benefits of lean beef and skinless chicken.

The ads use government data to illustrate that lean beef compares favorably to skinless chicken breast in terms of fat, yet provides greater amounts of some essential nutrients.

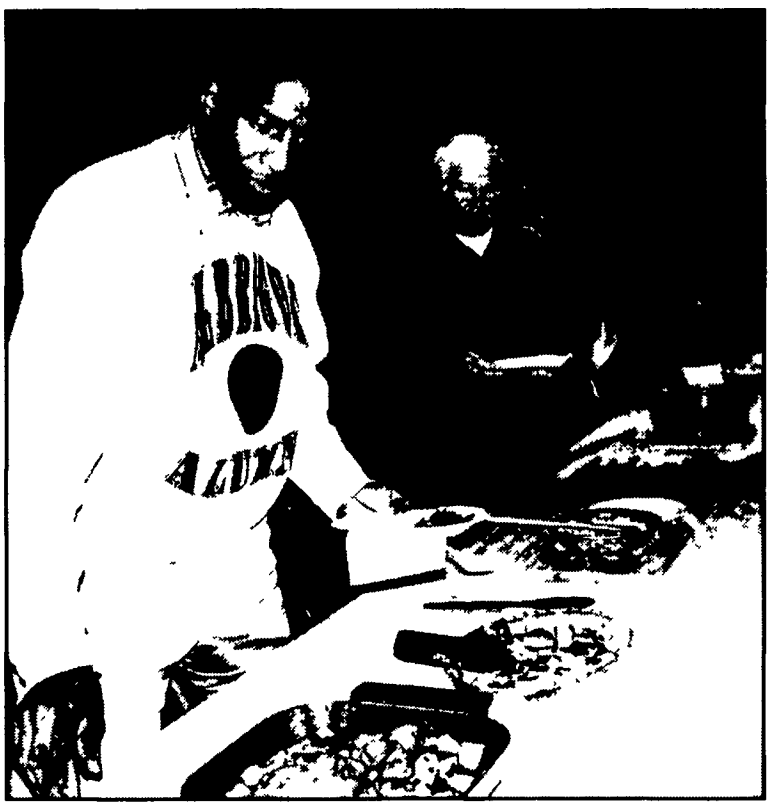
As the new ads point out, six of beef's leanest cuts have, on average, just one more gram of saturated fat but eight times more vitamin B12, six times more zinc, and three times more iron than chicken's leanest cut: the skinless chicken breast.

This information is based on sound science and is according to a USDA database that lists the nutrient compositions for all foods (www.nal.usda.gov/fnic/foodcomp).

Wade Zimmerman, a Colorado beef producer, Cattlemen's Beef Board member, and chairman of the Joint Nutrition & Health Committee, said "20 years of misinformation about beef and conventional wisdom has led many consumers to believe that skinless chicken breast is the 'gold standard' of healthy eating. The facts don't support this conventional wisdom."

Mark Thomas, NCBA vice president for global marketing, said this is not an "anti-chicken" campaign. "We're not saying 'don't eat chicken.' We are saying that you can feel good about eating lean beef," he said. "With so much conflicting nutrition information out there, it's time to set the record straight. People love beef. And now they can enjoy lean beef for its great taste and its nutrient benefits."

"The truth is, lean beef is a nutrition powerhouse," said Mary K. Young, M.S., R.D., NCBA executive director of nutrition. "We've launched this campaign to let beef lovers know that lean beef compares favorably to the fatty acid profile of skinless chicken breast but gives you more essential nutrients like zinc, iron, and vitamin B12."



On the low-fat menu are scallops, salmon, beef, and pork dishes. Sampling the variety are workshop attendees Michael Reese, Reading; John Bernhardt, Reading, Leroy Frey, Bern Township; and Joe Menet, Robesonia.

Marinade Recipes

BARBECUE MARINADE

½ cup chopped onion
1½ tablespoons packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
⅓ cup each cider vinegar and catsup
1 tablespoon each prepared horseradish and water
½ teaspoon coarse grind black pepper

Cook onion and brown sugar in oil in small saucepan over medium heat until onion is tender, about 3 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and continue cooking over medium heat 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; cool thoroughly before adding to meat or poultry. Makes about ¾ cup.

LEMONY ORIENTAL MARINADE

¼ cup fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons chopped green onion
1½ tablespoons each reduced-sodium soy sauce and vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon grated fresh ginger
¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper pods

Combine all ingredients, stirring until well-blended. Makes about ½ cup.

SOUTHWESTERN MARINADE

¼ cup prepared salsa (mild, medium, or hot, as desired)
2 tablespoons each chopped cilantro and fresh lime juice
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon ground cumin

Combine all ingredients, stirring until well-blended. Makes about ½ cup.

RED WINE MARINADE

⅓ cup red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
2 cloves garlic, minced

Lazy Day Stew is quick, easy and tasty.

¼ teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
¼ teaspoon coarse grind black pepper

Combine all ingredients, stirring until well-blended. Makes about ½ cup.

~ Allow about ¼ to ½ cup marinade for each 1 to 2 pounds of meat. Turn meat occasionally during marinating so that all sides are equally exposed to the marinade. For flavor only, marinate for 15 minutes or as long as 2 hours; for tenderizing, at least 6 hours. Remaining marinade may be brushed on the meat during grilling, or used as a sauce provided it is brought to a rolling boil for at least one minute prior to serving.

Rub Recipes

LEMON-ROSEMARY RUB

1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon dried rosemary leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon each salt, dried thyme leaves and coarse grind black pepper
2 large garlic cloves, minced

Combine all ingredients. Store in an airtight container. Shake before using to blend. Makes enough to season 2 pounds of meat.

SOUTHWESTERN RUB

1½ teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon ground cumin

Combine all ingredients. Store in an airtight container. Shake before using to blend. Makes enough to season 2 pounds of meat.

SPICY SEASONING MIX

3 tablespoons chili powder
2 teaspoons ground coriander
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1½ teaspoons garlic powder
¼ teaspoon dried oregano leaves
½ teaspoon ground red pepper

Store in an airtight container. Shake before using to blend. Makes enough to season 2 pounds of meat.

~ Use rubs on tender cuts of meat to add flavor. To apply the rub, simply cover the outside surface of the meat with the seasoning blend prior to cooking. Flavors usually become more pronounced the longer the seasoning mixture is on the meat.

Planning For Food Safety

When family and friends gather together, food is usually part of the celebration. Planning for large celebrations should include planning for food safety so that foodborne illness is not an uninvited guest.

Foodborne illness is illness that is transmitted to people by food and can result in flu-like symptoms such as nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea.

Keeping large quantities of food safe requires some extra planning. Harmful microorganisms that cause foodborne illness cannot be seen, smelled, or tasted so prevention is the key. Keep in mind the following strategies:

• Planning ahead for food safety means being sure that you have enough refrigerator space to refrigerate foods prepared ahead and catered foods that will be held until serving time. Coolers filled with ice can provide additional cooling space on the day of the event.

• Microorganisms found on our skin, in infected cuts and pimples, and in noses and throats are spread by improper food handling. Prevention includes washing hands and utensils before preparing and handling foods, after handling raw uncooked foods, and any time they might be contaminated. Good handwashing means washing hands for 20 seconds using warm water and soap, and drying with a disposable paper towel. Avoid the shared hand towel that can actually spread bacteria.

• Use a food thermometer to be sure that foods have been thoroughly cooked to safe temperatures. Consult a temperature chart for safe cooking temperatures for specific foods.

• When preparing food ahead, divide the food into shallow containers to store in the refrigerator or freezer until serving. This speeds cooling. Reheat hot foods to 165°F.

• Bacteria that get into food multiply to unsafe numbers very quickly at room temperature. Do not let food sit out at room temperature for more than two hours and no more than one hour on very warm days.

• Instead of putting out one large platter or bowl, divide large amounts of food into smaller serving dishes and replenish food periodically. Do not add fresh food to food that has been sitting out for awhile.

• Keep hot food hot. Use chafing dishes, crock pots, warming trays, and other heating equipment to keep food at holding temperatures of at least 140°F.

• Keep cold food cold. Nest serving bowl in a larger bowl filled with ice to hold cold food at 40°F or less.

• Remember that ice is food when added to cold beverages. Store cold drinks in ice with the top of the can or bottle sticking out of the ice. Since hands go in and out of the storage container, have a second supply of ice to be used for adding to beverage glasses.

• After the party, throw away food that has been at room temperature for more than two hours or one hour in hot weather.

ANSWER — M.J. Wade wanted recipes to make fruit roll-ups from natural ingredients. Thanks to Ruth Shirk, Lebanon, for sending the following recipes that her family likes to eat. She recommends experimenting with other fruits your family likes.

Homemade Fruit Roll-Ups

Strawberry — Puree in blender fresh strawberries. Add 1 cup sugar to each 8 cups puree.

Pour 2 cups puree on each round tray in food dryer. Dry on high for 12 hours, either all day or all night.

Tear into serving-size pieces. Place on sheet of plastic wrap and roll up. Freeze for later use. Good for lunch boxes.

Pear — Cook peeled pears until soft. Puree in blender. Add 1 cup sugar to 8 cups pureed pear. Following drying instructions for strawberry roll-ups.

Grape — Cook concord grapes, put through food mill to remove seeds and shells. Add half-and-half with applesauce. Add 1 cup sugar to 8 cups blended puree. Follow drying instructions for strawberry roll-ups.

Here are some recipes for fruit leather from another reader.

Fruit Leather

Use overripe fruit and puree in either food-mill or blender. To each five pints of puree, add 1 cup sugar and ½ teaspoon ascorbic acid to prevent fruit from darkening. Place ingredients in double broiler and cook at 180 degrees for 10 minutes. Pour into a shallow pan sprayed with nonstick coating. Spread to ¼-inch thickness. Set in sun for at least 24 hours. (you can finish drying in a drying cabinet for a brighter color. The mixture should be dry enough to pull off in a whole sheet. Cut into pieces and wrap in plastic, roll, and wrap again. Keep in refrigerator or freezer. If frozen, keeps one year.

Strawberry Leather

About 3 cups fresh strawberries
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon light corn syrup

Place strawberries in container of an electric blender; process until smooth. Measure 2 cups strawberry puree; stir in lemon juice and corn syrup.

Line a 15x10x1-inch jelly roll pan with heavy-duty plastic wrap, and tape plastic wrap to pan at corners. Pour pureed strawberry mixture into prepared pan and spread, leaving a one-inch margin on all sides. (Adjust the size and shape of the pan, if necessary, to fit your dehydrator. Keep the layer of strawberry mixture at the same thickness.

Dry in convection oven or dehydrator at 150 degrees for 7½-8 hours or until surface is dry and no longer sticky.

Remove leather from pan while still warm; beginning with short end, roll up jellyroll fashion. Cut into logs and wrap in plastic wrap. Yield: 5 (2-inch) logs.

Thanks to Mrs. James Zimmerman, Ephrata, for sending the following recipes:

Fruit Leather

1 gallon apricots, peaches, or nectarines
½ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
Honey to taste
3 teaspoons almond extract (optional)

Place pitted fruit and juice in heavy pot, cover, and cook on low until soft. Drain juice well (makes a good drink). Put through blender. Sweeten to taste. Add extract. Should be as thick as apple butter. Spread on paper-lined cookie sheets ¼-inch thickness. Heat at 120 degrees leaving oven door slightly open for moisture to escape. When dry enough to be lifted, put on racks to dry on both sides. Dust lightly with corn starch until all stickiness has disappeared.

Apple Fruit Leather:

1 gallon apples
1½ cups cider
Honey to taste
Cinnamon, cloves, or nutmeg to taste
Follow directions for fruit leather.

Mrs. Zimmerman writes that she pours 1 quart applesauce on lined cookie sheet and dries according to above directions. If it is difficult to remove the waxed paper, hold wax paper sice over steaming teakettle until warm. Pulls off easily, but be careful not to steam your hands. Her children love this.

ANSWER — Bob Snyder, Akron, Ohio, wanted a recipe for rivel soup. Thanks to Vera Burkholder, Leola; Yvonne Scantling, Wrightsville, and others for sending recipes.

Rivel Soup

1⅓ cups flour
1 egg
3 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoon salt
Parsley, corn, fried bacon, onion soup, optional

Heat 1¼ quarts milk to boil. Note: milk must boil. Drop the batter in with a fork. Turn off heat and cover soup until ready to serve.

Rivel Soup

2 cups flour
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ cup celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 eggs
1¼ pounds beef cut into cubes or more if one likes a lot of meat
5 quarts water
3 tablespoons parsley

Boil the beef until well done. In meantime, mix flour, salt, and eggs by rubbing them together. Add a little water if more liquid is desired. Rub until desired size. Some like larger rivels and some like smaller ones. When beef is done, add celery and onions. Add the rivels, a little at a time, stirring after each addition. Slowly cook 35-45 minutes or until rivels are thoroughly cooked. Add parsley just before serving.

2 cups cooked rice may be added if desired.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Cumberland Co. 4-H Club Learns About Feeds And Grains

The Cumberland County 4-H Club met April 17 to broaden their horizons on the types and kinds of small grains and hays they feed to their cattle.

County Agent Duane Duncan was present to conduct the session. All members were able to complete a worksheet on identifying all the feeds on their own. They then worked as a large group to find the correct answers and learn why the dairy cow needs each and every kind of feed.

Vice President Melissa Detman called the meeting to order at the Second Presbyterian Church, April 14, in place of president Brian Nailor. Holly Lemming led us in the Pledge of Allegiance and Janel Zinn led us in the 4-H Pledge. Everyone answered roll call with the number of animals we plan to place in 4-H this year. Tori Fuller read the minutes which were approved as read, and Gregg Hammond gave the treasure's report.

Under old business John Ocker brought to our attention that the Shippensburg Fair will not be supplying peanut hulls for our use, and we still cannot use sawdust to make beds with. We need to plan accordingly. He also informed us of how the District show and county round-up will be ran this year. The round-up is shortened to one night and will show the very next morning.

Under new business Robert, Janel, and Sarah reported on the last two Tractor Supply Fundraisers; Melissa Detman told about the dairy club activities; Robert and Clayton Weber reported on the Spring judging contest; Tori Fuller reported on her trip to the New York Spring Show; and Scott Walton reported on his trip to the Pennsylvania Spring Show.

Holly Lemming gave us the county council report and reminded us of their upcoming events.

John Ocker had some ending comments on the officer training, he suggested that everyone go even if they're not an officer. He informed us of the Nelle's Surfine fundraiser that on all your purchases they will donate 1 percent of it to the county 4-H. He also noted that anyone interested in dairy judging should see him so he can let Galen Smith know of anyone interested. He also reported that the judging team will go to state days during July 29-31.

Susquehanna County Green Grove Community 4-H Club

The Green Grove 4-H Club recently conducted its annual re-organizational meeting at the 4-H Room in the home of Rev. and Mrs. John Sherman.

Membership applications were processed, elections held and the program for the coming summer was reviewed. More than 50 people were present for the first business meeting of the year. There were 29 of the 39 enrolled members present, 13 leaders and 9 parents and siblings. Other parents also stopped by.

Officers for the new year include, Fernanda Rodriguez, president; Robert Powers III, vice-president; Julie Canfield, secretary; Ruben Rodriguez, treasurer.

The organizational leader, John Sherman, announced that the club was in need of new sources of finances for the current year. Leader Cassandra Madden, of Starrucca, asked to address the membership. She told of the fund drive that she and others had engaged in, the bake sale, and donations received. She then presented the proceeds — $770 — to Mr. Sherman for use by the club.

Most of the club had known about the fund drive, but all had kept it a secret from Mr. Sherman. Special thanks were given to those who worked to make it possible.

Snacks for the meeting were provided by Mrs. Deborah Suchnick.

The Green Grove 4-H Club is located on Route 374 between Glenwood and Lenoxville, next to the Green Grove Pilgrim Holiness Church.

Projects offered this year will include, Air Rifle, Air Pistol, Archery, Camping/Hiking, Fishing, Sewing, and Muzzleloading Rifle. Information about the Green Grove 4-H Club may be obtained by calling (570) 222-3389.

Susquehanna County Baconeers 4-H Club

A meeting of the Baconeers 4-H Club recently took place at the Claverack Building in Montrose.

Walt Dana gave a presentation on how to pick the perfect pig for your 4-H project.

Pig tagging was discussed.

The next meeting will be conducted on May 18 at 2 p.m. at Ann Corbin's home.

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a 30 year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well - until it was lost several years later Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to the landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

The experts had always told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology -- the STREAM MAP OF OHIO was created.

More than 380 children registered for the 32nd annual Youth Fish Day sponsored by Paradise Sportsmen Association and conducted on the David King farm, Paradise.

Trophies and tackle boxes go to the winners of the largest fish. Two-year-old Brandon Shiffleft, Kinzers, with the help of his Uncle Rob Shiffleft, claimed the prize for the under 5-year-old category, with a trout that measures 22 inches long. Twelve-year-old Raymond Lapp, Gordonville, caught a 20½-inch long trout to capture first place in the 6 to 12-year-old division.

Kids Hooked On Trout Fishing

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — Squeals of delight split the air as young fishermen landed trout along the stream banks of the John Fisher farm, Paradise.

Saturday, May 17, was the 32nd annual Youth Fish Day sponsored by the Paradise Sportsmen's Association, which stocks the stream with 1,700 trout the evening before the big event.

"We want to get the kids back into fishing, and to learn respect for the stream," said Cindy Garber, a member of the association.

More than 380 youth registered for the event, despite the cool, damp weather.

An area of the stream was roped off for children less than five years old, and those 6-12 years of age fished in the open areas. Parents, friends, and sportsmen taught the children how to bait a hook, cast, and reel in catches.

"Hunting and fishing seem to be dying out," Garber said. "We want children to experience the joy of landing a fish. We also want them to learn the importance of keeping the land and streams clean so that fish multiply instead of die."

For many young ones, the Fishing Day was their first time fishing. Evident in the children's expressions, the day promised to be the start of a lifelong love for fishing.

One little girl with a yellow bucket named each of the fish she caught.

Registration began at 7:30 a.m. Fishing started at 9 a.m. Competition ended at noon, although some families continued to fish.

The largest fish snagged by the 5-years-and-under division was a 22-inch long trout caught by Brandon Shiffleft, 2, of Kinzers. His uncle Rob Shiffleft helped reel in the winner.

In the 6 to 12 year-old category, Raymond Lapp, 12, Gordonville, caught a 20½-inch trout to win a large trophy and tackle box.

Free lunches of hot dogs, chips, and drink were served to the children who registered.

The event is free, but raffle tickets are sold to help fund the event. Community businesses contribute many of the prizes awarded. All proceeds go to stock fish nurseries, to feed fish, and to purchase stock for the following year.

Garber said that last year's drought caused the stream supply water to the trout nursery to stop flowing and killed the trout. On Jan. 18, the association purchased young trout from another source. The trout were fed a quick-grow diet in order to speed up their growth in time for Fish Day.

"This was an unanticipated expense that local businesses and residents and even some out-of-state businesses donated generously," Garber said.

The event is scheduled annually on the third Saturday in May, and conducted rain or shine. Children attend from as far away as Philadelphia.

Children who experience the fun of fishing also are taught the importance of keeping streams and riverbanks clean.

Family members share the joy of fishing.

Children were almost guaranteed to land a big one since the stream had been stocked the evening before with 1,700 trout.

These fish measure almost as large as the tot who caught them.

This expression shows the joy of fishing.

Even the services of cleaning fish were free to children who registered for the event.

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Send your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, cooking and baking times, sizes of baking dishes to use, and other beneficial information. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and your family is preferred.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the photo.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are 18 years old and older.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address; otherwise, we cannot mail your prize if you win. We are astonished when we see how many people do not include their full address and therefore forfeit receiving a prize.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 2 to be eligible for the drawing.

The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners through a random drawing for a chance to win one of the $500 worth of prizes.

Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winning names will appear in the June 28 issue of Lancaster Farming.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

In May we have great expectations of things to come. Our very old apple tree was covered with blossoms and the driveway is white with fallen petals. I cannot remember when it did not stand in the corner of our meadow where we built our log house. My husband has ordered a large net that he hopes to use to cover a sour cherry tree. Last year a net kept the birds from eating the cherries.

Our son, who lives on an adjoining farm, has been helping us even though he already has two full-time jobs. He put an electric fence on one side of my garden. We are hoping that it will deter the deer from eating the peas, which now have a five-foot fence to climb up. Surely hope all our effort gives us some good results.

My daughter gave me two bags of flower bulbs for Mother's Day. Now I shall have to find a place to plant them as I already have nine kinds planted. My three large iris beds are going to have a variety of colors this spring.

We have gotten many get well cards from Lancaster Farming readers. And, some have taken the time to write long letters explaining their situations, which often are similar to ours. We really appreciate their thoughtfulness.

The other week some of our children took us to a nice restaurant to celebrate Allen's 85th birthday. Luckily, I had baked a big cake that we shared later in the evening. One child gave him a large assortment of nuts and we shared those too. His bone infection will probably always affect his walking, but he can drive a car.

"The conference gave first-hand reports from several area schools who have seen positive results after implementing 'healthy schools at work' principles."

The Pittsburgh conference also provided information about the Pennsylvania "Action for Healthy Kids" state team. MORE POWER TO YOU

Introducing the Model ST55, the new, highest-horsepower flagship of the AGCO ST Series. Like all AGCO ST compact tractors, the ST55 is "Rock Solid" and built to professional grade standards. From AGCO Corporation, with more that 100 years of tractor heritage.

When you need the flexibility, versatility and tight-spot maneuverability of compact tractor but you need a little more "oomph" for demanding PTO, hydraulic or running-ground-engaging-tools applications, the ST55 is just the ticket. Now you can have the pro-grade strength, dealer backing, extra-spacious operator platform and other great AGCO ST features with a chart-topping 55.3 gross engine horsepower.

You know what you've 'gotta' do. See your AGCO ST Series dealer and let loose the power of the ST55 in your operation.

Dealers Thrive On Market Potential Of Unexpected Finds

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Warren Miller retired when he was 55 years old and started buying and transporting furniture from the Pennsylvania coal regions to sell in the Hershey area.

That was 15 years ago, and Miller said he no longer deals in furniture because it's too heavy to move.

Instead, he deals in small items, which he and his wife Esther display at the Lebanon Valley Antique Depot, 1251 E. Main St., Annville.

> "Prices fluctuate according to interests and the economy. If you buy right, I think you get a better return on your investment than you can in the stock market."
> Jim Sadler
> Lebanon Valley Antique Depot

Manager Jim Sadler said, "The Depot is the largest antique gallery in the area. It's expansive, with 160 dealers. We have everything."

But to offer wares that will appeal to buyers requires a lot of guesswork according to Miller.

"Interests change often," Miller said of his experience in the antiques business.

Some items bring surprising prices even to experienced dealers such as Miller. Recently he purchased an old bass saxophone for $170.

"I was expecting to double the price, but before I had it priced, a buyer approached me and offered me $700," Miller said.

That doesn't happen every day, but the hope to hit another great find keeps every day exciting for Miller and others like him.

Another exciting sale happened unexpectently when Miller hung up an old flag with 46 stars. He wasn't trying to sell the flag, just display it in honor of Labor Day. A Colorado tourist walked in, saw the flag, and knew the 46th star stood for Colorado, the 46th state to enter the Union. The tourist offered Miller $800 for the used 15x8-feet flag.

To keep things in perspective, Miller said, "But I sell a lot of stuff for $1 just to move it. It's a lot of guesswork in what's going to sell."

Last year, he couldn't get enough McCoy vases for the market. This year, prices are marked down and the market has dwindled.

Items that continue to sell well for him are collectibles connected to Milton Hershey of chocolate fame. The Depot is located near Hershey attractions, and many tourists stop by looking for a souvenir to take along home.

Recently Miller purchased several Steuben glasses that Hershey Chocolate gave to employees for its 100th anniversary celebration.

"Everyone who worked there got one, and everyone who didn't wanted one," Miller said of the anniversary gifts that he sells for $150 with the box.

He also has Hershey collectible plates from 1975 that sell for $20 each.

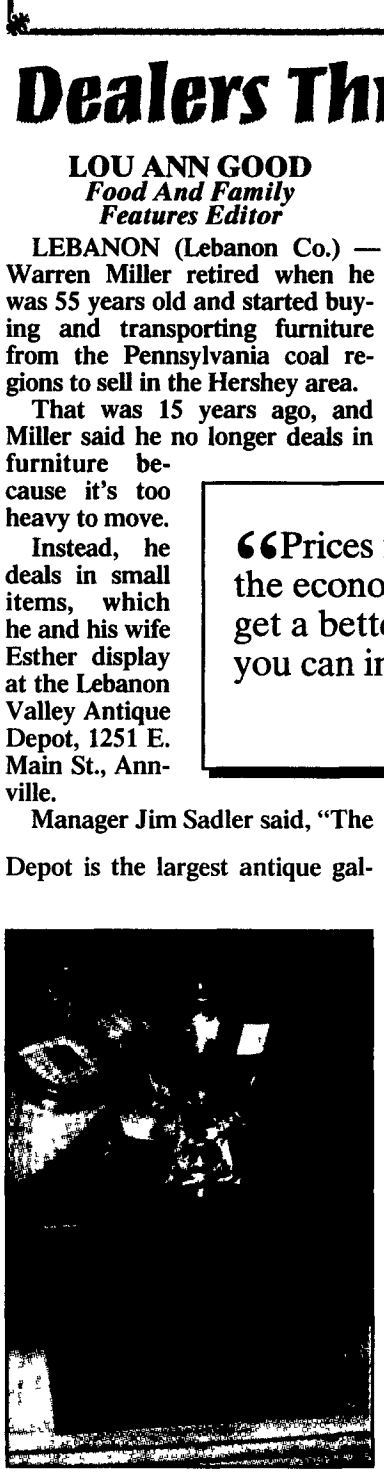
Crocks and cast iron kettles hold their values, according to Miller, but haven't increase for several years.

Larry Hicksenheiser displays glassware and children's books and puzzles at the Depot.

"Things are harder to find to resell at a profit," Hicksenheiser said of his 10 years in the business. He started selling his finds at flea markets.

"But I got tired of loading and unloading everything. I prefer to bring things to the Depot and leave them set awhile.

It's the seventh year in operation for the Depot, which is open daily except Wednesday from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., and Friday until 8 p.m. The flea market operates Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.



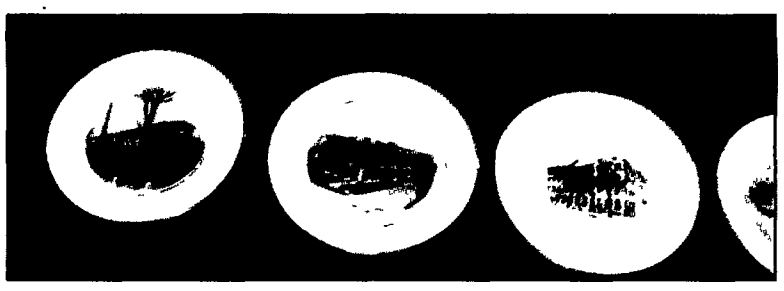
"For its 100th anniversary Hershey Chocolate presented these glasses with the Hershey emblem." Miller said of the $150 price tag he attaches to the collector's item, "Everyone who worked for Hershey got one, and everyone who didn't wanted one."

Not every childhood remembrance garners a high price. Here a 1936 "My First Animal Book" sells for $10. Children's puzzles are also affordable.

Larry Hicksenheiser deals in glassware and children's puzzles and books.

Jim Sadler said the Lebanon Valley Antique Depot, 1251 E. Main St., Annville, claims to be the largest antique gallery in Lebanon County. "It's expansive. We have everything," he said.

"I buy anything I think I can make money on," said Warren Miller. He holds an ax that was used to hew logs to remove bark. The ax handle is bent, so that fingers would not get pinched while using it.



These 1975 Hershey Collector's plates are priced at $20 each.

National Association Of Milk Bottle Collectors Plans Convention June 6-7

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The National Association of Milk Bottle Collectors will conduct its 23rd annual convention at the Holiday Inn in Grantville (Hershey), June 6-7.

Hundreds of collectors from all over the U.S. and several Canadian Provinces attend. Commemorating the era of milk bottles and other related collectibles, as well as the milkman and milk delivery vehicles, members will transform the hotel into a weedend of nostalgia packed with buying, selling, and trading.

Each hotel room becomes a sales/display room. Larger displays will be featured in a special area during the convention.

Highlights include an auction of bottles and collectibles, a "sundae" on Saturday with the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess scooping ice cream, and an awards banquet.

The public will be able to view exhibits and will be encouraged to meet with members. However, for the security of all the guests in the hotel, all non-members will be asked to register in the lobby.

Participants must wear name tags when walking through the exhibits, hallways, and member's rooms.

To learn more, and join about 2,000 other collectors, yearly memberships cost $20 U.S., $22 Canada, and $25 International. Membership includes a subscription to "The Milk Route," which is the official publication of N.A.M.B.C. since October 1980, a directory of members, and free advertising. For more information, write to Milk Route, P.O. Box 105, Blooming Grove, NY 10914, or e-mail moto2@frontiernet.net.

More information on the convention will appear in next week's issue of Lancaster Farming.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Modern Metal Furniture Inspired By Bentwood

The design world ridiculed designer Marcel Breuer when he first introduced metal furniture in 1924. His early version used steel tubing and the designs were inspired by the bentwood pieces of the Vienna Secession. This was the first time that steel, an industrial material was used for home interiors.

However, when his tubular steel and modular furniture was shown at the 1927 Salon des Artistes De'corateurs, the designs had become simplified and were on their way for the mass produced furniture of the Art Deco era. It also marked the beginning of the use of various industrial materials in the home, as well as showing the social and economic changes in the world.

These days auction houses like Treadway/Toomey in Oak Park, Illinois get several thousand dollars for a single example by designers such as Charles Eames and Warren McArthur.

Tubular aluminum and chromed furniture made early appearances in your mother's kitchen. It was the table with the formica top. And it showed up in beauty shops and inexpensive restaurants in the 1940s, 1950s. At the same time it had gone upscale with designers using it to create quality furniture.

An early metal furniture design was the stacking chair with a tubular steel frame, first mass-produced by the Thonet Company. It was quickly adapted for use in restaurants, concert halls, and other businesses.

One of the company's important designers was Charles Edouard Jeanneret, known as Le Corbusier. Using tubular steel, metal, and glass, he created many different styles of chairs and tables. Carrying out the new philosophy that fine design should be affordable and available to the masses, Le Corbusier used simple materials, such as canvas, held taut by spring fastenings, to cover the chairs.

One of his best-known chairs used pony skin stretched between metal tube supports. Both of these chairs could sell for several thousand dollars today. So much for "affordable to the masses."

During the 1930s there were many American metal furniture manufacturers. Herman Miller and Royal Metal Furniture were only a couple. However, Warren McArthur not only designed his own furniture but manufactured it of spun aluminum.

Many designers followed Le Corbusier. One, Arieto (Harry) Bertoia (1915-1978) decided from the beginning of his career to use only one medium for his work: metal. His legacy includes not only furniture but jewelry, hollowware, and art.

Born in Italy, he then came to America in 1930. After a scholarship to the Cranbrook Academy of Art he began teaching metalcraft and creating some of his own designs. By 1943 he had moved to California where he began working with Charles and Ray Eames, whose main interest was also metal. However, what he is best known for is the metal and wire furniture he made for Knoll Associates. His "diamond armchair," model 421-1 is still being made.

CLUES: In these days of Internet buying and selling the second-hand furniture store has all but disappeared. It was once the mother lode for not only genuine antiques, but treasures from the 1940s-1960s. Sorry to say, the names have been changed and the owners have become "dealers of Modernism." Then there are the "pickers" traveling the highways and scooping up the best at garage and house sales. Or so it would seem.

Modern metal furniture from bar stools to coffee tables, once one notch above "junk" wears hefty price tags at the proliferating "Modernism" shows across the country.

Since many pieces have been reissued and reproduced either research or know your dealer or auction house. Not every piece of Deco or Modern furniture is price tag.

Antique Detective Questions And Answers

I have looked at numerous shops and books and can't find anything out about this lamp I acquired a few years back. It is mounted on an iron base that has a cylinder of a marble-like substance, 4¼" high. On each side of it are a brass tube, round and 2½" high. A brass reservoir is 2½" High. It is topped with a blue glass globe 3" high. What can you tell me?

R.P.C. - Steinhatchee, FL

Your oil lamp is an Argand type, made around 1830-40. A Swiss chemis, Aim'e Argand created a new priciple for oil-burning lighting devices in 1783. A hollow, cylindical wick was fitted between two metal tubes. The inner went down through and below the oil reservoir. The oxygen reached the flame from the interior as well as the exterior resulting in a more smoke-free and brighter lamp. They were made in decorative forms in America and Europe by many makers.

Your lamp could sell at auction for $900/1,500.

What would this aluminum tray marked "Rodney Kent" be worth to a collector? How can I reach collectors?

J.S.- Lower Burrell

Rodney Kent is one of the top quality aluminum artisans. However prices are still modest for even such a decorative piece as yours: $65.

Contact collectors through Aluminist, PO Box 1346, Weatherford TX 76086. A periodical.

I would like to sell this small McDonald's carousel that was used at the 1951 California State Fair. It has three carousel creatures for children to ride and runs well. What would be a fair price to ask?

S.G. - Olathe, KS

What a treasure! Fast Food memorabilia is "hot" with collectors. Best bet is to write to McDonald's Collectors Club, 424 White Rd, Fremont, OH 43420.

A good starting price would be $2,000 or best offer. Run an ad in your local antiques trade publication.

Can this oriental bowl be Imari? It belonged to my late aunt. No marks on it.

Colors are dark blue and rust red. What could it sell for at auction ?

D.B. - Naples, FL

Your beautiful, large compote appears to be Japanese, Imari. It could sell at auction for several thousand dollars. Send photo and description to Lark Mason Jr., Oriental Arts Expert, Christie's , 20 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY, and possible 10020, for an estimated value sale.

BOBCAT MOWS MORE

Up to 29 Acres Per Day

Because Bob-Cat ZT 200 series mowers offer true zero-turn capability, they don't let anything get in the way of productivity. With a Bob-Cat ZT 219, ZT 223, or ZT 225, you'll spend more time mowing and less time trying to figure out how to get around trees, shrubs and other landscape features.

But that's not all. The cutting decks feature six anti-scalp rollers for a quality of cut not found in other zero-turn rotaries. And, the ZT 200s have something extra, something the competition will never have: Bob-Cat dependability.

Small Grain Harvest?

To Hoober Mechanics It Reads Like A Good Novel

- Hoober's experienced, factory-trained combine technicians have been working with Axial-flow technology since 1977 when Hoober brought Case-IH combines to the East

- Before Hoober delivers a reconditioned Case-IH Axial-Flow combine, Hoober's combine technicians check 150 separate checkpoints to ensure optimum performance

- Plus, Hoober combine technicians make additional modifications based on Mid-Atlantic field conditions, so your combine is even more productive and efficient

- Some people may find the Combine Reconditioning guide a bit dry, but to Hoober combine technicians, it's a true classic... one they never get tired of reading

With 0% FINANCING on all used combines, and Hoober's experienced service and parts support, now is the time to upgrade to a premium reconditioned combine from Hoober!

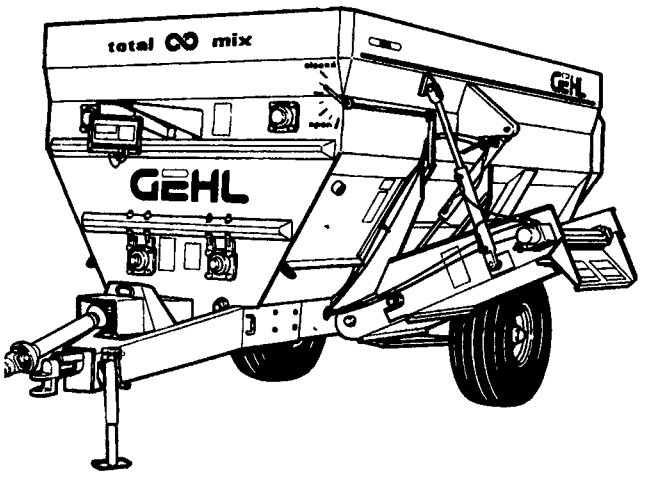
TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration – up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content.

- "Hay-slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure - 8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy efficient - Planetary drive system requires less horse power.

Fluffed up... never roughed up

If a storm hits while you're making hay, you'll need the New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter. It helps to dry hay fast, so you can bale or chop sooner. The 166 gently lifts, fluffs and turns windrows without roughing up the hay. So, you move your windrows onto dry ground for faster drying and retain valuable leaves.

For hay that's fluffed up not roughed up, check out the 166 today.

Hoober, Inc. Number One Great Plains Dealer

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Bill Shyman, district manager for Great Plains Manufacturing Corporation, Salina, Kan. presented a plaque to the Hoober, Inc's McAlisterville sales team.

Hoober, Inc. (Pennsylvania and Delaware) was the number one dealer in the U.S. in sales for 2002.

Shyman said, "It's a pleasure to work with a dealer as professional as Hoober."

Great Plains Manufacturing Corp. manufactures high quality agriculture products for planting, seeding, spraying and tilling in central Kansas. The products are distributed to more than 1,000 dealers throughout North America and overseas.

Great Plains developed a "Gold Medallion Program" in which dealers are required to stock parts and drills plus maintain factory service and sales training for each location every year. Recipients of the prestigious Gold Medallion Award from Hoober, Inc's, McAlisterville store include Daryl Bomgardner in November 2001 and Scott Brown in November 2002.

Hoober, Inc. has four stores located in Intercourse and McAlisterville, Pa. and Middletown and Seaford, Del. where they provide sales, parts, and service support for the agricultural communities throughout the eastern U.S.

Brad Hershey, store manager at the McAlisterville store, said, "We have been selling this reliable product since 1978, and are excited to have Great Plains as a business partner. With their focus on no-till drills and precision seeding, they can be very responsive to our needs and the needs of our customers."

WEST BEND, Wis. — Gehl Company has taken a major step in becoming one of the most comprehensive suppliers of forage boxes for the agricultural industry.

The Gehl Forage Box line offers a total of 11 units, which includes front-unload, rear-unload, and combination front/rear-unload models. This expanded line includes the rear-unload, "Forage Max" series with a truck-mounted version.

The Gehl Forage Box line offers agricultural professionals the variety and dependability they need to quickly transport forage. The increased volume capacity reduces the number of field-to-bunker or silo trips.

"The demands placed on forage equipment have changed dramatically," said Andy Strupp, agricultural product manager for Gehl. "While the need for dependable equipment hasn't changed, improving efficiency and reducing cycle times are vital to a successful farming operation. Gehl's new line of forage boxes reflects the needs of today's agriculture operations."

Every Gehl Forage Box is constructed with corrosion-resistant aluminized steel to provide years of rugged use. Roofed forage box models have support members at each "C-channel" side stake. These side stakes are bolted to the side frame for added reinforcement.

Gehl also introduced a new family of running gears designed to handle the added weight and stress of these bigger and heavier forage boxes. This running gear offering consists of four-wheel models from 8- to 17-ton capacity and 6-wheel units from 12- to 22-ton capacity.

Advanced Agri Solutions Releases New Product

STEVENS (Lancaster Co.) — Advanced Agri Solutions LLC recently introduced a new formulation of the AAS Drench Mix product to provide dairy producers and veterinarians with the latest technology to address the needs of fresh cows.

In the new formula, calcium propionate has increased by 250 percent to meet university recommendations. Recent trials have shown that drenching fresh cows with 100 to 150 grams of calcium from calcium propionate lowers the risk of milk fever and reduces the symptoms of sub-clinical hypocalcaemia. A four-pound dose of AAS Drench Mix supplies this recommended amount of calcium propionate, which also functions as a glucose precursor.

Niacin, a useful B vitamin, was also added to the formula at 12 grams per dose to help maintain liver health.

AAS Drench Mix also contains alfalfa meal to provide a readily available source of soluble protein to enhance rumen microbial growth. Magnesium, potassium, yeast, and direct-fed microbials are included at adequate levels to yield the best possible benefits of fresh cow fluid therapy. Ingredients are finely ground to be compatible with any drench or pump system and attention to quality standards provides consistent nutrients in every dose.

AAS Drench Mix is packaged in a convenient one dose, four-pound bag or in a 50-pound bag. AAS Soluble Drench Mix that includes the same ingredients except alfalfa meal and is used at two pounds per dose is available in a 25-pound pail.

New Herbicide For Corn Growers

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — The Environmental Protection Agency has approved Equip™ corn herbicide for this growing season.

Equip is a broad-spectrum herbicide that controls grasses such as foxtail, johnsongrass, and shattercane. It also delivers control of broadleaf weeds including cocklebur, lamb's-quarter, morningglory, ragweed, sunflower, and velvetleaf.

Bayer Cropscience, Equip manufacturer, reports that Equip contains a new proprietary herbicide for broadleaf control that also offers targeted residual for continued control of small-seeded broadleaves such as lamb's-quarter, pigweed, and smartweed. Equip is unique because it contains a safener that allows tankmixing opportunities for more residual grass control.

Growers and applicators should refer to the product label for a complete listing of tank mix partners.

Gehl Adds 2512 Impeller Disc Mower-Conditioner To Line

WEST BEND, Wis. — Gehl Company has announced the addition of the 2512 impeller disc mower-conditioner to its line.

The 2512 features an 11-foot 10-inch cutting width, and its new impeller conditioner is designed to turn standing crops into fast-drying windrows while maintaining maximum nutrient value.

The Gehl 2512's 20-inch diameter impeller utilizes 126 flails to condition the crop and deliver it into a windrow. The flails gently pick up the crop from the cutterbar and propel it into the conditioning hood. This process removes the waxy layer from the stems, resulting in faster drydown, and allowing operators to get baling or harvesting finished quicker.

The conditioning flails are free-swinging to reduce the likelihood of damage if an obstruction is encountered in the field. The impeller conditioner is driven by a heavy-duty 4-band v-belt with two sheaves. These sheaves are different sizes and can be easily interchanged to give the operator two conditioning speeds. The sheaves can be positioned for high-speed (1200 rpm) aggressive conditioning or low-speed (850 rpm) gentle conditioning.

Researcher Finds Lime, Fertilizer Can Improve Forest Regeneration

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Applying lime and fertilizer to areas where timber was harvested can dramatically improve the regeneration of trees, according to a researcher in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, who just completed a three-year study of new forest growth in Somerset County.

In a paper published March 5 in the journal Forest Ecology and Management, Bill Sharpe, a professor of forest hydrology who has chronicled the effects of acid rain in Pennsylvania for more than two decades, maintains that soils in many places have become too acidic to support adequate new growth of some economically important species.

"The addition of lime and fertilizer in combination with herbicide appeared to significantly improve growing conditions and resulted in taller and more diverse regeneration," he says.

The study was conducted in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources' Bureau of Forestry. But in a finding sure to prove an eye-opener for that agency, Sharpe's research indicated that an herbicide commonly sprayed in the state to kill hay-scented ferns to promote tree growth actually made soils more acidic and elevated levels of aluminum, which is toxic to trees and other plants.

"Use of the herbicide may actually be making things worse," says Sharpe, who teamed with former graduate student Angela Schreffler on the study. "Chemical measurements of soil water revealed that the standard practice of herbicide application alone actually made soil water more acidic and increased aluminum concentrations."

The research was done on three sites where timber was removed in a "shelterwood cut," which Sharpe describes as "standard Bureau of Forestry practice, leaving quite a few trees behind to provide seeds for regeneration."

The land then was fenced to keep deer out, and each site was divided into several research plots. Some plots received lime and fertilizer only, others received herbicide only, and others got lime, fertilizer and herbicide. Control plots were established where no materials were applied.

"Study data revealed that the benefits of liming were reduced by the relatively large amounts of sulfur deposited in forest soils as a result of many decades of acid rain," says Sharpe.

"When herbicides were combined with lime and fertilizer treatments, woody seedling numbers, diversity and height growth improved significantly. Results were not as good for limed plots without herbicide treatment due to competition for growing space. But where ferns were damaged and partially eliminated by logging equipment, woody seedling growth was very good."

An increase of red maple trees in Pennsylvania forests has been noted in the last decade, occurring at the same time that northern red oaks have been decreasing in prominence, a trend that concerns many foresters.

Sharpe believes his research has shown one reason why. "The red maple is a more acid-tolerant species," he says. "Residual red maple tended to grow better on the more acidic herbicide-only plots. In fact, it could be argued that the standard red oak shelterwood cut with herbicide treatment favored red maple growth."

Pennsylvania is downwind from the greatest industrial complex in the world — the Ohio Valley — and the state's forest soils have been polluted by acid precipitation originating from there for many decades. The acid comes primarily from sulfur dioxide in the emissions from coal-fired power plants in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia, and western Pennsylvania.

"Pennsylvania long has been the victim of the most acidic precipitation in North America," Sharpe says. "Acid deposition increases soil water aluminum, which is toxic to plants and also lowers the availability of calcium and magnesium, which are essential elements for plant growth. We have a forest regeneration problem and a forest health problem in Pennsylvania.

"Our research group has been studying the relationships between these problems and acid deposition for the past dozen or so years.

If you argue that the problem is poor growth due to acid rain-caused soil acidity and loss of calcium and magnesium, putting these nutrients back into the soil should fix the problem and indicate that your argument is correct. In this case, it appeared as though soil acidity was indeed a large part of the problem.

"The good news is that this study showed that with appropriate use of herbicide, lime and fertilizer, forests can regenerate very nicely in as little as two or three growing seasons."

Woods Introduces New Rotary Cutter For Sub-Compact Tractors

OREGON, Ill. — Woods Equipment Company has introduced the RCC42 single spindle rotary cutter, the newest addition to Woods' Estate Series, landscape attachments for tractors up to 25 horsepower.

The RCC42 mows weeds and light brush up to 1-inch in diameter in pastures, trails, and gardens. Deep, sturdy side frames and a smooth, sloped deck that sheds water and debris are just two of the quality features that ensure years of worry-free performance.

Woods' Estate Series features four compact yet powerful attachments for smaller tractors up to 25 engine horsepower, with category 1 or 0 three-point hitches. The 60-inch rear grading blade, 60-inch landscape rake, 48-inch box scraper, and new 42-inch rotary cutter are ideal for general maintenance around the yard, garden, and pasture.

All products in the Estate Series carry Woods' reputation for safety, performance, and durability, and are tested in rigorous real-life conditions and in compliance with recommended industry safety standards.

Worksaver's New Tree Clipper Simplifies Trimming, Cutting

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — The new Tree Clipper from Worksaver, Inc. solves the problem of trimming and cutting hard to reach tree branches or unwanted trees. It also eliminates the need to trim limbs with a chainsaw from a loader bucket or ladder. The Tree Clipper can be mounted to either side of the main frame and provides excellent visibility.

Designed for use with a tractor loader or a skid steer loader, the Tree Clipper features rugged welded steel frame construction while the cutting blades are built from T-1 steel. The cutting head rotates 113 degrees. The head rotator cylinder is 3" × 10" and the cutting head cylinder is 5" × 8".

The Tree Clipper is available in two models, the Model TC8-FL and TC8-SS. The Model TC8-FL is designed for use with a tractor loader and includes standard pin-type brackets. Optional quick attach brackets are available.

The TC8-FL requires a minimum of 45 PTO HP. The TC8-SS Tree Cutter is designed for skid steer loaders that use the "universal" attachment system.

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!
1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process If your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)

Imported from Holland, ORLANDO is a black 17.1 Hand Dutch Harness Horse Stallion.

The Dutch Harness Horse is a wonderful horse to cross with existing breeds of horses used for driving and work. Dutch Harness Horses have been bred in Holland for over 80 years. The sole purpose is to increase trot and stride, thus producing driving horses that move more efficiently and cover more ground with less effort.

Exciting opportunities exist for the serious breeder looking to be involved with the induction and infusion of these great horses into today's breeding programs.

ORLANDO is standing at Mogadore, Ohio for the 2003 breeding season, shipped semen is available. The 2003 introductory stud fee is $1000.00 and includes a live foal guarantee.
